U. S. GENERAL PASSENGER ON CRASHED C-53

Three Generals' Wives Are Among 11 Passengers Stranded In Alps

PARIS, Nov. 20—U. S. Army rescue planes converging from three countries today spotted the C-53 transport which crashed in a snow-filled French Alpine valley with 11 persons aboard, including one general and three generals' wives.

Weak radio messages from the grounded plane disclosed that five, and possibly six, of the 11 persons had been injured seriously. No body was killed in the crash.

U. S. Army officials at Wiesbaden announced that two A-26 bombers had sighted the disabled plane about 20 miles southeast of Grenoble, near the Italian frontier, during the morning. They circled the wreckage.

Rescue parties of mountain climbers carrying food and blankets were reported nearing the scene after an all-night fight against snow and steep cliffs.

U. S. Army headquarters in Vienna announced that the following persons were aboard the plane:

Brig. Gen. Loyal Haynes, head of Gen. Mark Clark's advisory group, and Mrs. Haynes; Col. William C. McMahon, recent chief of staff in Austria, returning home, Mrs. McMahon and their 11-year-old daughter, Alice Mary; Mrs. Ralph H. Tate, wife of Brig. Gen. Ralph H. Tate, Clark's deputy commander, and Mrs. Albert Snavely, wife of Brig. Gen. Ralph Snavely, head of the American air force in Austria.

Capt. Ralph H. Tate, Jr. was pilot of the crashed plane. Other crew members were 2nd. Lieut. Irving Matthews, co-pilot; Sgt. Louis Hill and Staff Sgt. Wayne G. Felson. All were stationed at Tulin field, Austria.

Generals Tate and Snavely left Vienna for the crash scene today in a flying fortress. Capt. Thomas Mervine, a surgeon, accompanied them. Rescue planes carrying medical supplies and blankets to be dropped took off from France and Turin, Italy.

The Vienna headquarters said five persons were seriously injured, but did not announce their names. A radio report from the (Continued on Page Two)

'Open War' Declared In Holy Land

BULLETIN
JERUSALEM, Nov. 20—A heavy explosion shattered the building occupied by the income tax and press censorship offices in Jerusalem this afternoon. There was no immediate report on casualties.

JERUSALEM, Nov. 20—Jewish Irgun Zvai Leumi extremists declared open war today against Hagana, the moderate Jewish underground army, and warned that they would "reply with bullets" to Hagana's "anti-terrorist" campaign in Palestine.

Long-smoldering Irgun grievances against Hagana were aired in handbills distributed throughout the all-Jewish city of Tel Aviv.

The pamphlets proclaimed an "all out war" against the underground army in answer to Hagana's militant "educational campaign" to end violence in the Holy Land. Hagana agents recently raided and destroyed extremist caches of weapons and ammunition.

"Hagana put the clock back two years when Irgun leaders were persecuted," the leaflets said "but this time Irgun won't be silent. We have cooperated with Hagana (Continued on Page Two)

RUSSIANS UPSET AGREEMENT ON TRIESTE ISSUE

Belated Appeal To Italy And Yugoslavia Crosses Up Big 4 Plans

NEW YORK, Nov. 20—The Soviet Union may have upset big four prospects for an early final agreement on Trieste today with a surprise and belated appeal to Italy and Yugoslavia to settle their dispute over the city and their future frontier by direct negotiation.

The Soviet move was tantamount to an invitation to Italy and Yugoslavia to ignore the big four agreement reached earlier this week for setting up an Anglo-American type of international regime in the proposed free territory of Trieste.

(The British broadcasting corporation reported that the Italian foreign office in Rome already had announced instructions to its ambassador, Alberto Tarchiani, in Washington, to enter at once direct negotiations with the Yugoslav ambassador to the United States, Sava Kasanovich.)

Secretary of State James F. Byrnes was understood to still look skeptically on the prospect of successful Italo-Yugoslav negotiations at this point. A week ago he threw a bucket of cold water on Yugoslavia's initial move to start private talks with Italy. But that was while the big four were completely deadlocked over Trieste.

Byrnes is not expected to object formally to direct Italian-Yugoslav negotiations if both sides want them. He is morally committed to such procedure having made a great fuss in Paris about the fact that Italy and Austria had amicably settled their dispute over South Tyrol by such a method.

But Byrnes also is unlikely to second Soviet Foreign Minister Viacheslav M. Molotov's warm encouragement to Italy and Yugoslavia, especially now that he has Molotov committed to the kind of international regime for Trieste that the U. S. has been fighting for since last Summer.

The big four will meet again late today after a one-day recess to continue discussion of unsettled odds and ends of the proposed Trieste statute. The big four has not yet answered formally Italy's original letter asking advice on whether to proceed with direct negotiations with Yugoslavia.

The first move in the direction of direct negotiations was made by Yugoslavia recently when Italian communist leader Palmiro Togliatti brought back to Rome from Marshal Tito an offer to trade Trieste for the city of Gorizia—Italy to keep the former if she would cede the latter to Yugoslavia.

AMVETS WILL BE ASKED TO OPPOSE JOHN L. LEWIS

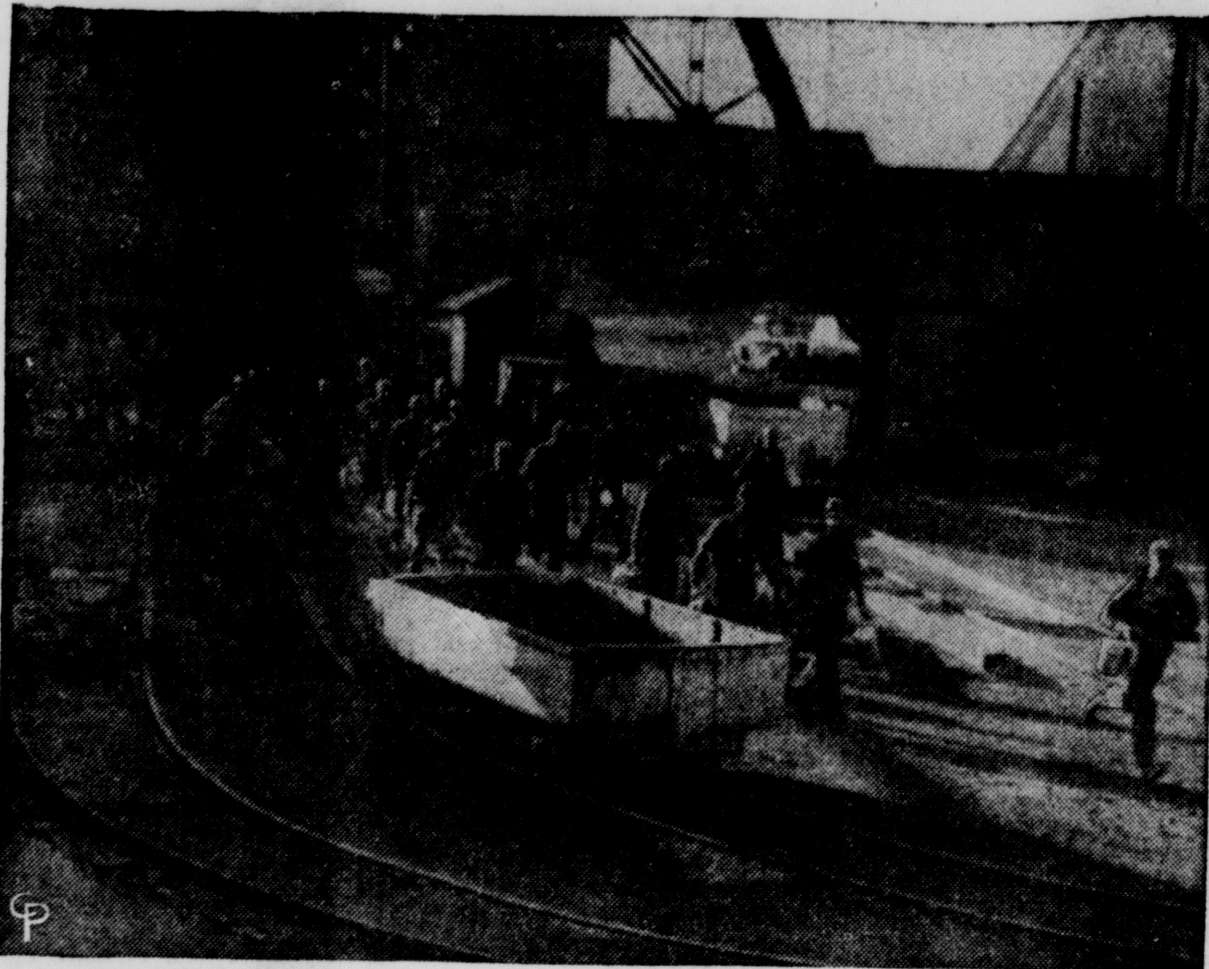

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 20—American Veterans of World War II will be asked at the opening of their third annual convention here tomorrow to take a definite stand against John L. Lewis, it was announced today.

In a statement before the AMVETS national executive committee, Jack W. Hardy, national commander, charged Lewis with "sabotaging all of the legitimate gains of labor and defying attempts of the American government to maintain national peace and order."

Hardy told the committee at a pre-convention session, that he will read a full statement to the general convention and urge the Amvets to "take action to back the American people on the road toward industrial and labor peace through intelligent planning and cooperation."

PIPELINES STUDIED
WASHINGTON, Nov. 20—A special house investigating committee sought today to determine exactly why the government received 16 bids for the "big inch" and "little big inch" pipelines.

LAKE SUCCESS, Nov. 20—Soviet Foreign Minister Viacheslav M. Molotov charged in the United Nations today that allied troops stationed in non-enemy territories were exerting pressure on "friendly" governments.

FIVE KILLED IN LAUNDRY BLAST

Authorities Making Check To Learn Total Injured By $500,000 Explosion

GREENVILLE, S. C., Nov. 20—Authorities made a survey of hospitals in surrounding communities today in an effort to determine the number of casualties in last night's tremendous explosion which leveled the block-long Ideal Laundry killing five and injuring more than 150 persons in the neighborhood.

The explosion was heard 30 miles away at Spartanburg. Several buildings and residences were demolished.

The death list included J. Carl Trammell, laundry superintendent, Wiley Mimms, office manager for the Nebi Bottling company, both white, and negroes Jerline Simpson, Mamie Earle and Mary Brown.

The blast came shortly after some 40 employees had reported for the night shift.

Authorities expressed the belief that a leak in a huge tank condenser (Continued on Page Two)

U. S. FARMERS FACE SHORTAGE OF FERTILIZER

CHICAGO, Nov. 20—The nation's farmers face the most acute fertilizer shortage in history and already millions of acres of land have been lost to productive use because of a lack of minerals, the chief conservation engineer for the Tennessee Valley authority said today.

Neil Bass, chief TVA conservationist, told the 32nd annual meeting of the Illinois agricultural association that farmers need, and are ready to buy, fertilizer but are blocked because of their great distance from raw material sources and producing points. Many farmers, he said, are without fertilizer because its use is relatively new in their areas and trade channels are not well established.

HANNEGAN ILL, READY TO QUIT

Democrats Looking For New Committee Chairman, Postmaster General

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20—The Democratic national committee was operating today without a chairman for all practical purposes and the question before President Truman was who should succeed 43-year-old Robert E. Hannegan in that job.

Mr. Truman may have to look for a new postmaster general, also. Announcement that Hannegan had been ordered to take a complete rest was accompanied by word from his associates that he was expected to resign the committee chairmanship shortly. His cabinet tenure will depend, the United Press was informed, on how much his vacation improves his health.

Hannegan suffers from high blood pressure, an affliction not uncommon in politics, and will be away from Washington until Jan. 15.

Gov. Robert S. Kerr of Oklahoma, whose term now is expiring, is most prominently mentioned as Hannegan's successor as committee chairman. Hannegan's own choice probably would be second assistant postmaster general Gael Sullivan. Others whose names have figured in speculation are price administrator Paul Porter and undersecretary of interior Oscar Chapman.

The Democratic national committee is tentatively scheduled to meet here in January at which time Hannegan's resignation would (Continued on Page Two)

GREEN FEARS FARMERS FACING LOWER PRICES

COLUMBUS, Nov. 20—Release of price control dried up much of our present and future markets for some time to come, President Perry Green of the Ohio Farm Bureau federation had warned here today.

Speaking before the federation's annual meeting, Green said he feared that in the next 18 months there would be a considerable collapse of agricultural price levels. He blamed "failure to control inflationary trends and consequent loss of foreign markets."

Green reported to the meeting on Farm Bureau activities and urged a drive for increased membership and consolidation of cooperatives throughout the nation.

TRUMAN OFFERS HELP

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20—President Truman today told the national conference for the prevention and control of juvenile delinquency that he would support any plan it may offer to alleviate "this blight upon our country."

LEWIS WATCHED FOR LAST MINUTE MOVE AGAINST INJUNCTION

Troops Alerted As Midnight Deadline For UMW Compliance With Injunction Nears; Lewis Risking Jail

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20—Army troops were alerted today and an air of tension gripped the nation as the zero hour drew steadily nearer for a walkout by John L. Lewis' soft coal miners at midnight tonight.

Justice department officials watched Lewis closely in the belief he would make a sudden last minute legal maneuver to upset the government's campaign in the courts to prevent the mine shutdown.

Both sides in the dispute were conducting a war of nerves, Lewis by his silence, his United Mine Workers by their wildcat walkouts, and the government by its reminder that troops might be sent into the coal fields. More than 100,000 miners already were idle, striking prematurely to support Lewis in his battle with the administration.

Justice department officials believed Lewis would break his silence today by moving into court to contest the restraining order obtained by the government. The order directed him to revoke a contract termination notice which the government interpreted as a signal for the miners to strike at midnight tonight in government-operated bituminous mines.

If he failed to comply, Lewis risked jail or a fine for contempt of court.

Government attorneys said two days notice ordinarily would be required for the court order to be cancelled or changed, but the justice department was reported ready to waive the two-day requirement and argue the case immediately.

President Truman was following developments from his vacation retreat in Florida, and steel mills and other coal-consuming industries were ready to start curtailing operations at once if a strike developed.

Freight Embargo Planned
The office of defense transportation, preparing for any eventuality, was drafting a freight embargo under which only most essential commodities would be given priorities for rail transportation.

ODT already has ordered a 25 percent cut in service on coal-burning passenger trains, effective Monday.

The threat of troops was raised in a war department announcement that the Army was ready to cooperate in response to any call from Secretary of Interior J. A. (Continued on Page Two)

CIO BACKS UP LEWIS FIGHT ON INJUNCTION

Union Convention Adopts Resolution Condemning Government Action

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 20—The CIO today joined the fight of John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers (AFL), against the injunction granted to the federal government by a District of Columbia federal court.

The convention adopted a resolution condemning the issuance of injunctions in labor disputes, including a surprise amendment offered by the resolutions committee condemning the action of the federal government in the coal strike threat. The resolution said: "We condemn the action taken by the federal government in obtaining a sweeping injunction against the United Mine Workers of America. This is a clear violation of the Norris-LaGuardia act. No anti-labor injunctions can dispose of the problems now confronting workers who see their earnings shrink before the fast-rising cost of living. American democracy cannot tolerate any attempt to impose economic slavery through vicious anti-labor action."

More Than 100,000 Miners Already Idle

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 20—More than 100,000 of the nation's 400,000 soft coal miners stayed away from the pits today as the hour drew near for the second industry-wide walkout in nine months.

Production was reduced drastically as more miners joined the walkout that was snowballing rapidly toward a general paralysis of the industry at midnight tonight, the hour set by United Mine Workers President John L. Lewis for the expiration of the present contract.

William Hines, director of the UMW district 4 at Uniontown, Pa., predicted that all pits in his district would be closed by the deadline.

"Remember, you can't mine coal with injunctions," he said in reference to the federal government's restraining order preventing Lewis from canceling the contract.

PRICE OF SUGAR TO GO UP HALF CENT A POUND

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20—The cost of sugar is going up again, this time about one-half cent a pound.

The increase—which adds an estimated $50,000,000 to the nation's annual food bill—was ordered by OPA to reflect price boosts paid to producers.

The increased prices will be effective for consumers as the higher priced supplies reach retail stores.

ONE-FOURTH OF OHIO'S MINERS WALK OFF JOBS

By United Press
Unofficial estimates today placed at well over 6,000 the number of miners idle in Ohio coal fields out of approximately 20,000 United Mine Workers employed in the state, and the pre-deadline walkout continued to spread.

The walkouts were especially frequent in the heavily mined Crooksville-Corning area, where one observer predicted all mines would be closed today. Union officials said they had received no official word on what action to take, but 25 miners meetings were scheduled in the area last night.

The Jones Coal company mine at Misco, largest in the field, closed yesterday, adding 800 miners to the list of those idle. The mine produced about 100 cars of coal per day.

Coal was reported selling for double its normal amount at the tipplers yesterday as even those communities in the heart of the coal producing regions began to notice shortages.

Dealers were swamped with orders, many of which they could not fill.

POLICE HUNTING FIVE WHO TOOK MEN WILD RIDE

COLUMBUS, Nov. 20—Police, deputies and highway patrolmen today searched for four armed men and a woman who abducted two Richland county men early this morning and took them on a wild ride through Central Ohio.

The victims, William Bell of Mansfield and Merle Leddy, 22, of Belleville, said they stopped near Mansfield to pick up two men who were hitch-hiking.

When they stopped, two other men and the woman joined the first pair. One of the men carried a shotgun, and forced Leddy and Bell into the back seat.

The abductors then drove on Route No. 42 to Delaware, where they lost the route and went to Mt. Gilead and from there to Columbus.

At about 6 a. m., the two victims were ordered to get out of the car, about one mile west of Columbus. They were tied up with seat covers and left in a field.

They escaped and reached a service station, where they called highway patrolmen. They said the four men had been injured about the legs. Officers believed they had been in an accident reported near Mansfield earlier last night.

REVISION PLAN READY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20—Reconversion Director John R. Steelman was scheduled to fly to Key West, Fla., today and submit to President Truman a plan for a new agency to take over the remaining functions of OPA and the civilian production administration.

RIVER VICTIM IS IDENTIFIED

Man Found Near Circleville Was Jacob Jones, 72, Columbus Resident

Scioto river drowning victim, whose body was found Tuesday afternoon four miles north of Circleville, was identified Tuesday night as Jacob Jones, 72, of 506 Mt. Vernon avenue, Columbus.

The identification was made at the Albaugh mortuary by the victim's sister-in-law, Mrs. Eliza Jones, 181 St. Clair avenue, Columbus. The body then was removed to the Whitthier and Son funeral home, Columbus.

Mrs. Jones came to Circleville after Pickaway County Sheriff Charles Radcliff, recalling that a man named Jake Jones spent several days in the county jail in October, telephoned to the Franklin county sheriff's department and asked that a search be made for Jones' relatives.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2 p. m. Friday at the Columbus funeral home and burial will be in Evergreen cemetery, Columbus. Mr. Jones was unmarried. He formerly lived in Tennessee and he was the son of Henry Jones and Caroline Jones.

Sheriff Radcliff and Deputies Carl Radcliff and Ralph Leist, summoned to the scene after Earnest Goldsberry, South Scioto street, came upon the body while he was hunting and trapping, removed it from the water. The sheriff said Mr. Jones' pockets contained 41 cents and also an envelope from the Franklin county division of aid for the aged. The envelope contained a $1 bill. There was no identification clues on the body of the drowning victim. The body had apparently been in the water about 48 hours.

Mrs. Jones told officials that Mr. Jones had often wandered away from home.

SEARCH ON FOR COUPLE MISSING FROM SAILBOAT

ST. SIMON, Ga., Nov. 20—Coast Guard surface craft and a dumb PBV search plane patrolled Georgia coastal waters off legendary Black Beard island today for two persons still missing from a sailing yacht that ran aground during a howling northeaster, drowning at least two of the six passengers.

Chief Boatwain Mate William E. Fulcher, commanding a Coast Guard crash boat at the scene, radioed his base that Mr. and Mrs. Ted Sienzak of Detroit had survived the accident and had made shore on Black Beard.

NAVY SUBMITS REQUEST FOR RECORD BUDGET

Record-Breaking Total Of $5,900,000,000 Asked From New Congress

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—The Navy, with an eye on development of guided missiles and new undersea weapons, has submitted to the budget bureau a record-breaking peacetime request of $5,900,000,000 for the 1948 fiscal year, it was learned today.

The request represents an increase of about $750,000,000 over the revised Navy budget for the current fiscal year, ending next June 30. The Navy's biggest request before the war was for the 1941 fiscal year, when it asked $2,430,000,000.

In its presentation of 1948 estimates, the Navy emphasized the importance it places on adequate funds for construction of a strong submarine force and for research in the guided missile field.

Envisioned in the Navy's undersea program are submarines capable of remaining under water for months if necessary, new power sources and improved weapons.

This new tack on naval strategy grew out of the Bikini atomic bomb experiments which did relatively little damage to submerged submarines. Many naval officers now believe the submarine may be the major sea weapon of the future.

To back up its request for guided missiles research, the Navy pointed out that any war within the next five to 10 years would be waged with weapons basically similar to those used in World War II.

Only through heavy spending now, the Navy said, can the groundwork be laid for development of radically new weapons.

Anticipating that the 1948 budget request of nearly $6,000,000,000 will be pared down by the budget bureau or the economy-minded 80th congress, the Navy submitted its request with four priority listings.

Holding top priority were the funds the Navy believes mandatory for the national defense. They were followed by money deemed necessary for essential combat readiness, necessary naval efficiency and finally funds listed as "necessary for naval progress."

POLICE PUZZLED ABOUT WHO DID ACTUAL KILLING

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 20.—Authorities declared today they had the killer in custody, but admitted they still don't know who he is or whether he was motivated by love or money when he shot and killed Mrs. Margaret Hutsel, 34, semi-invalid mother last Friday.

Two suspects, each accusing the other, three possible motives and the discovery of the alleged murder gun in a third man's home baffled authorities trying to solve the slaying.

Sheriff's deputies said the slayer was either her husband, Emil, 37, who admitted planning the killing, or Thad Crawford, 30, a Negro. Both are in custody on murder charges.

Hutsel said he planned the killing of his wife because he loved her. He said she was suffering terribly from paralysis and he wanted to put her "out of her misery". Crawford, however, actually shot her to death, he said.

Motive No. 2 for Hutsel was offered by Virginia Atchison, 21, an attractive office worker who went to authorities and told them Hutsel had asked her to marry him before the slaying. She said Hutsel told her his wife did not have long to live and said then "we can be married and live happily."

done," he said. "Sentiment has increased in the last 24 hours."

In western Pennsylvania, the last of Jones & Laughlin Steel corporation's four "captive" mines—the Shannopin—was closed when 650 miners struck. The steel company indicated its operating schedules might be affected within a few days.

A survey showed the following number of miners out in the principal coal-producing states: West Virginia, 28,500; Illinois, 18,000; Alabama, 16,000; Kentucky, 16,100; Pennsylvania, 11,350; Indiana, 6,300; Ohio, 3,000, and Virginia, 2,000.

A report by the solid fuels administration showed that 72,823 miners were idle, forcing the closing of 272 pits. However, SFA long enough. Now we are betrayed . . . We will reply with bullets."

Irgun's war declaration came a few hours after an electrically-detonated mine exploded near the headquarters of the Jewish agency in Jerusalem. One Jew was injured in the blast. Glass was shattered and walls were cracked along King George avenue where the explosion occurred. The mine exploded 50 feet from the Jewish agency office.

Some observers interpreted the explosion as the first blow in Irgun's war against Hagana, which has cooperated with the Jewish agency in denouncing violence as an instrument of Zionist policy.

taining 15,000 gallons of cleaning fluid was responsible for the explosion, gas fumes being ignited in the basement furnace.

(The Red Cross in Atlanta, Ga., area headquarters sent a disaster staff to aid victims whose homes were wrecked.)

Fire Chief Frank Donnell reported that plant manager E. R. Haynie had discovered the tank leak shortly before the explosion.

He reportedly warned employees to leave the plant, which was one reason the death toll wasn't higher.

The explosion was heard distinctly some seven miles away. Radio station W-F-B-C received a telephone call from a woman in Spartanburg reporting that she had heard the blast.

The entire plant was a tangled mass of masonry and twisted steel. Haynie estimated damage to the laundry at $500,000.

Two of the larger hospitals in the city treated a total of 154 patients, a number of them in critical condition.

It was difficult to make a thorough check on casualties because ambulances from neighboring communities, including Greer, Anderson and Easley rushed to the scene removing patients to their hospitals in order to relieve crowded hospital conditions in this city.

OHIO WELFARE GROUP APPROVES HOUSING BILL

COLUMBUS, Nov. 20.—The Ohio Welfare Conference today had endorsed the Wagner-Ellender-Taft Housing Bill as a measure that will solve the veteran's housing problem.

The endorsement came at a banquet meeting of the conference during which officers were elected. David Bouterse, executive director, outlined legislative proposals of the conference.

A new ration of state aid for poor relief to include child welfare service and hospitalization for the indigent will be asked of the general assembly in January, Bouterse said.

The state will be asked to reimburse local governments "at least 75 per cent of their expenditures for those programs," Bouterse told the conference.

Hal H. Griswold, president of the Cleveland welfare federation, was named president of the conference, to succeed Juvenile Court Judge Raymond Smith of Lima.

COLUMBUS, Nov. 20.—Nearly 9,000 Ohio veterans in educational and on-the-job training will lose subsistence benefits unless they turn in a report on their earnings for the past three months by Friday, Ralph H. Stone, deputy veterans administrator warned today.

According to the law, veterans receiving subsistence checks must make the three-month earning report to prove that their income totals have not exceeded $175 a month for single vets and $200 a month for married veterans.

Veterans who do not report their earnings must go through a reinstatement process before they can resume government subsistence, Stone said.

Krug Can Use Troops

When President Truman ordered the mines seized last May, he authorized Krug to call on the war department for help if necessary in carrying out the purpose of the order, which was to produce coal.

Krug already has ordered notices posted that the mines would remain in operation and that the UMW contract with the government was still in force. Disorders could be expected if any miners attempted to work while others struck.

Lewis gave no sign yesterday of what action he contemplated in response to the slugging battle the administration had begun. The government had refused to negotiate a new wage contract with him and went to court when he asserted the right to terminate the present agreement at midnight tonight.

At the request of Attorney General Tom Clark, U. S. District Judge T. Alan Golsborough issued a temporary restraining order Monday requiring Lewis to withdraw the termination notice and to do nothing to encourage a mine be accepted and a successor sought. Some Democrats have suggested that Kerr's availability might be somewhat impaired by his business, which is oil. Oil has been political ammunition for Democrats against Republicans ever since the scandals which destroyed the reputation of the Harding administration.

No wrong-doing is attributed to Kerr, who is held in high esteem hereabouts, and on the record he was a loyal supporter of the Roosevelt new deal as governor of Oklahoma.

Hannegan brought his high blood pressure to Washington in 1943 when he accepted appointment as commissioner of internal revenue. His rise in politics had been spectacular. He was a good student and an outstanding athlete at the St. Louis University where he was graduated in law. Like James A. Farley, who was the last Franklin D. Roosevelt's first national committee chairman, Hannegan had a natural yen for politics.

He became 21st ward committeeman in St. Louis in 1933 and just more than 10 years later he was chairman of the Democratic national committee with the assignment to obtain Mr. Roosevelt's nomination and election to a fourth term. That proved to be one of his easier jobs. A much more difficult assignment in that presidential year was to bump Henry A. Wallace out of the vice presidency.

Hannegan succeeded Frank C. Walker as chairman on Jan. 22, 1944 at a national committee meeting at which the members adopted a resolution "soliciting" Mr. Roosevelt to seek a fourth term.

COUNCIL PLANS TO MEET AT 8 YEAR AROUND

When to meet—and if not—then why?

This is the question which apparently bothered Councilman Boyd Horn and other members of the Circleville city council Tuesday night.

Councilman Horn offered a motion that the time for the council sessions be changed from 7:30 p. m. to 8 p. m. He said that 7:30 was too early and does not provide sufficient time for the members "to get ready."

It was pointed out by Councilmen Ray Cook and George L. Crites that the motion was unimportant "because the council never meets anyway until 8 o'clock or later." Horn insisted, however, that the ordinance which stipulates the council sessions between Oct. 1 and April 1 shall begin at 7:30, should be amended and the time changed to 8.

Horn finally won the argument and City Solicitor George Gerhardt was instructed to prepare the necessary legislation.

KNUTSON SAYS CONGRESS CAN REDUCE TAXES

Prominent Republican Hits Back At Critics Of 20 Percent Tax Cut

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20—A prominent Republican struck back at Democratic skepticism today by reaffirming a GOP pledge for a quick 20 per cent cut in personal income taxes.

Rep. Harold Knutson, R., Minn., who is in line for chairmanship of the tax-writing house ways and means committee, said he was confident the slash could be made by the Republican-controlled 80th congress.

There were raised eyebrows among Democrats.

Rep. Eugene E. Cox of Georgia, a power among southern Democrats, said he was in sympathy with the GOP tax reduction-economy program but feared the Republicans had "promised more than they'll be able to deliver."

A somewhat similar view was expressed by Rep. Robert L. Doughton, D., N. C., retiring chairman of the ways and means committee, a post he has held for 12 years.

"I'm not criticizing the Republicans," Doughton said. "I'm not saying they can't reduce taxes. A reduction of 20 per cent or five per cent or even 25 per cent is all right with me—if it can be done."

The determining factor, he added, is whether it can be done without impairing essential government activities.

Knutson expressed his position this way:

"Upon assurances given by Mr. Taber (Rep. John Taber, R., N. Y., next chairman of the house appropriations committee) that the 1947-48 budget will be held at or below $32,000,000,000, I can assure the country, without reservation, we will be able to reduce the personal income taxes by 20 per cent, balance the budget and make substantial payment on the national debt," Knutson said.

Cox said he feared such pledges might cause the country to expect more relief than it will get.

"We've got to interest ourselves in behalf of maintaining sound and solvent government but the ills from which this country suffers can't be remedied or cured by a single stroke. It takes time."

Cox said he feels "the welfare of the country should be put above party" and that he, for one, would support sound, essential legislation regardless of party sponsorship.

He thought that legislation to modify the Wagner labor relations act and to outlaw the closed shop would be in order for the coming session.

ADMIRERS MOB MOVIE STARS AT SHOW OPENING

NEW YORK, Nov. 20—Movie stars were a dime a dozen at the opening of Ingrid Bergman in "Joan of Lorraine" and a screaming mob of bobby-soxers staged a near riot in a mad rush for autographs.

Police were almost powerless to quell the enthusiastic youngsters and before it was over here is what happened:

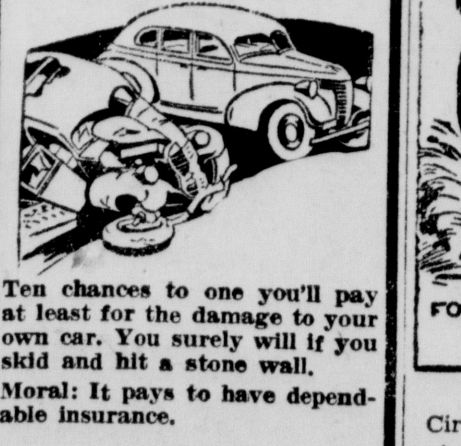

Myrna Loy had her mink coat stripped from her shoulders.

Charles Boyer was pulled out of his limousine and had his black topcoat yanked off.

Jimmy Stewart was escorted into the theater by a protective cordon of policemen who formed a flying wedge and dashed for an entrance.

Paulette Goddard wasn't only mobbed. The kids committed the unpardonable sin of mistaking her for Evelyn Keyes.

WELFARE WORK SAID 'BLOCKED BY DOLLAR SIGN'

COLUMBUS, Nov. 20—Ohio has the best program for child care in the country "on paper", but every attempt to put the legislature enacted some months ago into effect, has been "blocked by the dollar sign," A. David Bouterse, director of the Ohio Welfare Council, told state welfare workers.

Speaking before the Ohio Welfare Conference at their meeting here Bouterse said, "There is only $3,000,000 of public funds yearly going into child welfare in Ohio. Contrast this to the $50,000,000 going to the aged and you will realize how woefully inadequate it is."

The council is recommending that the state provide 75 per cent of the funds spent on a county children's program.

Welfare director Frazier Reams said at the meeting that the State's care of the mentally ill has shown "vast improvement" but that "over emphasis" upon admitted defects in institutions has lowered morale of employees and made it increasingly difficult for superintendents of State hospitals to obtain competent attendants.

Governor-elect Thomas J. Herbert appeared at the conference and spoke extemporaneously. Governor Lausche was asked to the conference but was unable to attend.

BIG 9, PACIFIC COAST AGREE ON ROSE BOWL

Western Conference Team To Play In New Year's Day Classic In 1947

BERKELEY, Cal., Nov. 20.—The Pacific Coast conference and the Western Conference—the nation's two top-ranking intercollegiate leagues—signed a five-year agreement today to match their teams in the Rose Bowl starting Jan. 1, 1947.

The pact blasted Army's hopes of entering this New Year's tournament of Roses and still left in doubt the identity of both the Big Nine and West coast entrants.

The Western Conference choice apparently lay between Illinois, currently leading the Big Nine conference, and Michigan, which still has an outside chance to win the title in the conference's final games Saturday.

The University of California at Los Angeles and Southern California will meet Saturday to determine the tournament's far western competitor.

The pact, reached after nearly 24 hours of debate between commissioners and faculty representatives of the two conferences, covered these points for conducting the nation's No. 1 bowl classic through Jan. 1, 1951:

1. Each conference is to designate its own representative, and presumably its championship football team.
2. For the first three years the Western Conference will select one of its own member teams.
3. For the fourth and fifth years the Western Conference will be at liberty to nominate a competitor from outside its own league, but the selected team will be subject to the approval and invitation of the Pacific Coast conference. If the two groups fail to agree on an outside nominee, then the Western Conference will send a member team.

Officials of the two conferences, who began their meeting at 10 a. m. yesterday, quickly came to an agreement on most points of the tentative agreement offered by the Big Nine. But the Western Conference wanted the whole pact to be effective next New Year's day, and there were elements of the Pacific coast delegation who favored holding off for a year so that Army's mighty, unbeaten eleven could be invited.

The Big Nine, however, remained adamant on making the pact effective immediately and at 12:45 a. m. this morning the agreement was signed.

The two conferences set up an interim committee to draw up an agreement covering the conduct of the game. Commissioners Victor O. Schmidt of the Pacific Coast conference and Kenneth L. (Tug) Wilson of the Big Nine were named to this group, which also will include other representatives of both circuits and a tournament of roses representative, who will act only in an advisory capacity.

The group was expected to determine how the game will be held, how much practice the competing teams will be allowed and probably how the gate receipts will be divided.

CHICAGO, Nov. 20.—Frank Lane, a protégé of fiery Larry MacPhail, stepped into the presidency of the American Baseball Association today with a two year contract.

Lane, whose career began under the personal direction of MacPhail at Cincinnati, was general manager of the Association's Kansas City Blues, and supervisor of the New York Yankees western division farm clubs. He will take over his new duties Dec. 1.

He replaces H. Roy Hamey, who resigned recently to become general manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Lane said the Association headquarters would remain at Columbus, Ohio, and that the clubs would play a 154-game schedule

ILLINI TRAIL IN STATISTICS

Big Nine Leader Eighth In Offense, Fourth In Defense Ranking

CHICAGO, Nov. 20.—The football "pay-off" is on points and Illinois today stood as a prime example of that fact as it eyed an undisputed western conference grid championship.

Statistically Illinois is an "also ran," ranking an unbelievable eighth offensively and fourth defensively. The Illini top only Wisconsin from an offensive standpoint.

The bare figures are deceptive however, for Coach Ray Eliot's team actually has scored more points than any rival in the conference, 113. Michigan is second with 107 points and Ohio State third with 106.

Illinois' total offense average of 212.2 yards per game is 100 yards per contest less than the league-leading total established by Michigan.

While Illinois has given its six opponents an average net gain of 236.1 yards per game, it hasn't yielded the yardage when it hurt. In its last three games against Michigan, Iowa and Ohio State, the Illini have granted only two touchdowns. Over that same three-game stretch the Illinois line has turned back 12 scoring threats when the opponents moved inside its 25-yard line.

Northwestern tops the circuit in yards gained by rushing with 222.8 and Indiana continues as the most effective passing team with an average of 130.8 yards per game through the air.

Defensively Michigan took over the lead with an overall mark of 193.9 yards per game for its foes. The Wolverines are the only Big Nine team which has a defensive mark under the 200 yard level.

With Michigan both the offensive and defensive team leader, the Wolves cut in for additional honors in individual departments with the versatile Bob Chappuis setting the total offense pace.

Chappuis has an aggregate of 765 yards and needs only 95 more in the final contest with Ohio State Saturday to break the Big Nine's total offense mark set in 1942 by Otto Graham of Northwestern.

Graham's total of 862 yards was compiled on 148 by rushing and 714 by passing. Chappuis' aggregate is better balanced with 417 yards by rushing and 351 by passing. The Michigan star has the advantage of playing seven league contests to the six in which Graham participated.

The record Chappuis threatens is one of 11 which may fall this season.

Two other marks set by Graham are in danger. His 53 pass completions good for 714 yards are tops in those brackets, but Bob DeMoss of Purdue and Ben Raimondi of Indiana threaten the completion total. DeMoss current-

COUNTY LEAGUE CAGERS BUSY AGAIN FRIDAY

Neighborhood Rivalry Will Enliven Schedule Which Calls For 5 Games

Five games are scheduled again this week in the Pickaway county basketball league.

One of the "hottest" battles will be staged at New Holland between a couple of neighborhood rivals. Perry is the visiting team and although the boys from Atlanta have lost twice while powerful New Holland was winning easily this Friday's contest promises to have plenty of fire. The neighboring schools forget records when they meet and this week's game is not expected to be an exception to the usual procedure.

Ashville, idle in league play last week, goes to Tarleton to meet Saltcreek, which lost its first league game last week. Saltcreek should have an edge because of playing on its home floor and a close game is expected.

TRAINMEN USE WALKIE-TALKIE UNITS AT WORK

Pennsylvania Railroad Crews Now Equipped With 'Carryphone' Units

A new kind of "walkie-talkie" portable telephone, by which trainmen inspecting their trains or otherwise working about them can talk with other members of the crew, the crews of other trains in the area, and with operators of distant wayside control towers, was announced today by the Pennsylvania Railroad.

The new "Carryphone" transmits and receives messages through the air, operating in connection with the railroad's inductive telephone system for communication between trains, between trains and control towers, and between the ends of trains, now in operation on 1,056 miles of main tracks between Harrisburg and Pittsburgh, Pa., and on the Belvidere-Delaware branch in New Jersey. It was perfected after years of cooperative development with the Union Switch & Signal Company.

Carried by means of a shoulder sling, the new unit weighs 20 pounds and is housed in a cabinet measuring only 16 1/2 by 12 3/4 by 8 inches. With it, a trainman can leave his cabin car and still maintain constant communication with other members of the crew in the cabin car or on the engine, and can talk, as well, with the operators in control towers up to 15 miles distant. He can converse with the operator of another Carryphone, or with the crew of another train, up to three miles distant.

Railroad officials pointed out that greater flexibility of operation is possible when trainmen have a means of communication immediately available whenever they leave their normal positions on the train. For example, when cars are to be switched out of a train or picked up enroute, directions for moving the train during the switching operation may be given to the engineman more efficiently by Carryphone, especially when the view may be obstructed. The new device has proved valuable to crews making train inspections, enabling trainmen to keep in touch with the engineman, and providing a quick means of reporting any unusual circumstance. It is also expected to be valuable to crews of work trains, to track maintenance forces, and to forces patrolling and protecting the railroad.

Essentially a miniature version of the telephone transmission and receiving unit installed on trains, the Carryphone can be compared with a radio "walkie-talkie," except that instead of radio waves it transmits and receives messages through the air by induction, using the track and wayside wires on poles as its communication channels. Thus, its messages are confined entirely to the limits of the railroad, and there is no interference with radio operations in the vicinity.

In using the Carryphone, trainmen need only lift the hand piece to place the unit in operation. Tiny storage batteries provide power for approximately two hours of continuous service. When not in use, the Carryphone rests in a receptacle in the cabin car, which automatically connects its batteries, for charging with the larger batteries of the car's train telephone unit. Lifted from the receptacle, it is ready for immediate use.

"Advises every sufferer from Rheumatic-Arthritic-Sciatic-Neuritic Pains to try Muscle-Rub."

Here's the true story of a man who took treatments, used all kinds of remedies for his sciatic, neuritic pains without being helped in the slightest degree. Mr. Robert Jordan of Colon, Mich., suffered agony from pains in his hip-knee-calf or legs. The pain at times was so bad that he couldn't sit down. He tried several different treatments, many different medicines, all of which did him no good. He couldn't work. Life was misery for him.

Then one day he saw an advertisement of Muscle-Rub—the doctor's prescription—in a newspaper. He bought a bottle. He used it as directed and in 3 days the pains were relieved and Mr. Jordan was back on the job.

No wonder he advises every rheumatic sufferer to try Muscle-Rub for fast pain relief. Get a bottle today at ALL GOOD DRUG STORES.

Remember, Muscle-Rub is sold on this money-back guarantee. If only half a bottle doesn't bring relief your druggist is authorized to return your money.—Adv.

History Of Coal Debate Is Recalled

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20—Log of the government dispute with the United Mine Workers:

May 22—Government seized 2,250 soft coal mines on order of President Truman after six-weeks strike and collapse of negotiations between UMW and operators.

May 29—Secretary of Interior J. A. Krug and UMW President John L. Lewis signed union-government wage contract which union hailed as greatest in its history.

Oct. 21—Lewis charged government with breach of contract; said agreement permitted either party to demand negotiations on 10 days notice and to terminate it in 30 days; asked that negotiations for a new contract begin Nov. 1.

Oct. 22—Lewis was told that the contract could not be reopened, that he should negotiate instead with mine owners. Lewis replied that contract was void unless the government agreed to negotiations.

Oct. 27—Krug invited Lewis to a conference Nov. 1.

Nov. 1—Conferences began.

Nov. 14—Krug proposed that UMW negotiate with private operators with the understanding that the government would release the mines in 60 days whatever the outcome.

Nov. 15—White House announced that Lewis rejected and the operators accepted Krug's plan; Lewis filed notice that contract would expire at midnight Nov. 20.

Nov. 18—At request of Attorney General Tom Clark, U. S. District Judge T. Alan Goldsborough issued a temporary restraining order requiring Lewis to withdraw the notice and to comply with the contract.

WISE REPEATS FIRE WARNING

Chief Reminds Councilmen That Alarm System Is Inadequate

Warning that Circleville's fire alarm system is inadequate and that the situation should be remedied "before something serious" happens was reiterated during the city council meeting Tuesday night by Fire Chief Talmer Wise.

The declaration was voiced after Chief Wise, a spectator at the session, was asked whether he had anything to say to the council.

Chief Wise reminded the municipal legislators that while some repairs were made recently to the worn-out alarm system the latter is not functioning properly. He said that frequently when a fire call is tapped on the bell at the fire station the firemen race to the location only to find the number tapped was incorrect.

"Then the firemen have to hunt all over the city to locate the fire," Chief Wise asserted. He added that in his opinion the city should have either an adequate alarm system or no system at all.

NAVY SEEKS MEN WHO CAN WORK AS TECHNICIANS

Chief Boatswain Mate E. W. Bobb who has just taken over the Navy recruiting office in Chillicothe announces the Navy is still in need of electronic technician mates, the operators of the eyes, ears and nerve systems of the new modern "push button" Navy.

Electronic technicians learn to build, install and maintain radio and radar communication equipment, radio directional finders and the newest in electronic devices.

In order to qualify for electronic technician mate training applicants must pass the "Eddy Test". This is a specialized aptitude test designed to show whether an applicant has the mental capacity and knowledge of high school mathematics and physics required to absorb the intensified course of study represented by E. T. M. training.

The Navy offers to men who qualify a 42 weeks training school with a 28 weeks advanced school after receiving practical experience at sea or shore station. The school curriculums are constantly revised to take advantage of the new improvements and developments in the field of electronics.

Men between 17 and 30 who can qualify for enlistment in the Navy may obtain information at the Chillicothe recruiting office or from the recruiter when he visits the VFW home in Circleville.

HIGH PRICES

EVERYBODY is complaining about high prices of everything. The old dollar has been stretched and stretched, and it covers less and less. Neither disappearance of the OPA nor scarcities explain entirely the soaring cost of living, say the economists.

There are two other factors. One is the practice of many labor unions in forcing their members to spin out their work, make it take unnecessarily long with a resultant wage increase that boosts the prices of production. Another contributing cause of high prices is the deliberate restriction by some manufacturers and contractors of the quality, quantity and variety of goods offered. From both schemes profits result. The public pays.

Consumers, either individually or possibly in group action, eventually will react to this sort of thing by curtailing, wherever possible, their purchases. In other words, prices if pushed artificially high bring a buyers' resistance which, if extensive enough, can mean national financial collapse.

BULLDOZER VICTORY

E. L. SHANER, editor of the trade magazine Steel, home after a 48,000 mile trip with a group of business men sent out by the United States Reparations Committee, said Japanese told their party they knew they were defeated when they saw American bulldozers at work. Landing ships would disgorge these huge machines which in a few hours would prepare an air field. Japan had nothing to compare with such inventions. They symbolized in a graphic way the might and organization of America.

Here is another example of the important part industry plays in modern warfare. Bulldozers arriving in LST's, quite as much as guns, brought victory in World War II.

RUSSIA HAS A POINT

COMMENTING on the recent elections the Soviet army paper, the Red Star, says:

"A considerable part of the American people are deprived of the right to vote especially the poorest layers of whites and negroes."

As long as Mississippians persist in following a Bilbo, and Georgians elect men like Talmadge, Americans cannot deny the Red Star's allegations. White supremacy is a blot not only on certain southern sections of this country, but on the entire nation. It should become the responsibility of Congress to see that the constitution's franchise-for-all clauses are enforced everywhere.

Sure we have worries. But if we had nothing to do but loaf and play games, we'd probably be bored to death.

Major party leaders are said to be considering the nomination of a military hero in 1948. Why not Kilroy?

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20—Skeptical newsmen laughed among themselves about the promise of a Republican individual income tax cut of 20 per cent and said it would be a good trick if they could do it. The stock market fell short of ecstasy also. The market was closed for the day, when speaker-to-be Martin promised it, but next day trading failed to react much and even when the steering committees adopted the program definitely, the market achieved no immediate impetus.

The fact is the tax cut is an economic necessity, and the Republicans will not only effect the promised 20 percent but more. The only thing which will limit the cut is, receipts are diminishing from expectations today due to business losses. Ford, for instance, has announced a loss of $51.6 millions in 9 months before tax rebates. Corporations pay taxes only on profits, and if there are none, there will be no tax income from that source, which means the receipts pot will be that much smaller, hindering a tax reduction.

But the Republican steers agreed they could cut individuals as much as 20 percent anyway, and publicly announced that much, while privately hoping and planning to do something like that with the general tax structure.

A man earning $50 a week with one dependent, today pays 5 or 10 percent in withholding taxes before he gets his salary. This has nothing to do with social security, which runs his tax bill even higher. But it is too much. A 20 percent cut in the tax would lop $1 off and leave him paying $4 which is still rather high cost for a federal government.

The August Truman budget is $41.5 billions with expected receipts of $39.6 billions (leaving a deficit) but Senator Taft, who knows government finance thoroughly, is talking about a budget for next year (beginning next July 1) of about $30 billions, which would represent a cut of more than one-fourth. Taft has publicly listed about $6 billions of this year's appropriations which will not all recur next year, and these alone would seem to cut the prospective budget down to $35 billions before you even get into the possibilities of economies in government outlays including Army and Navy expense.

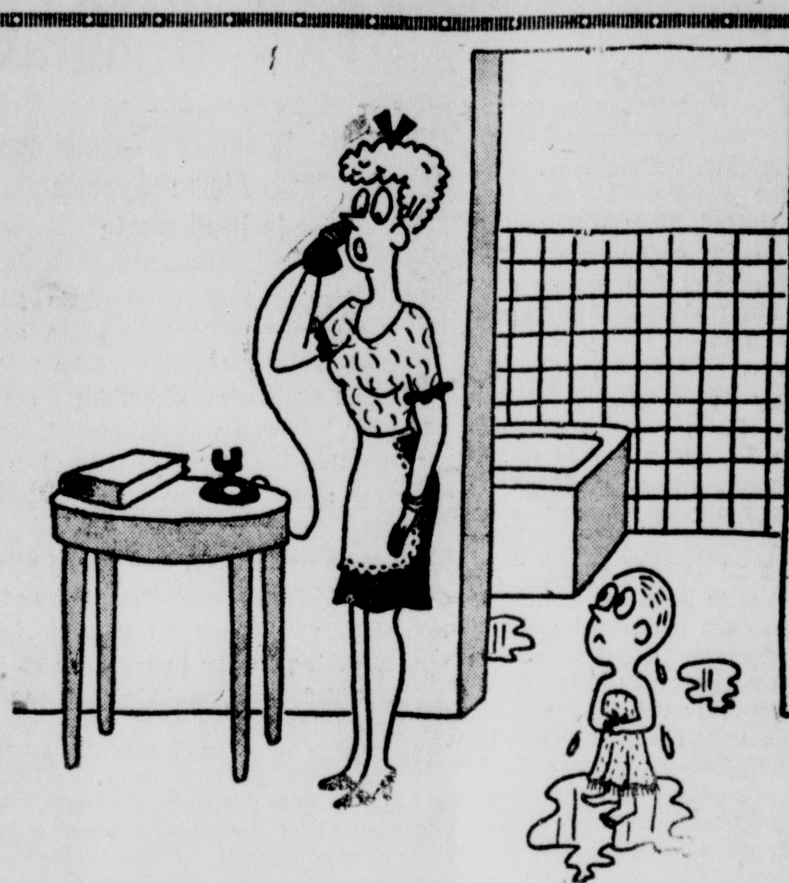

If business gets into production to a reasonably anticipated extent, Ford actually should make money in the next calendar year, certainly in the next government fiscal year which lags 6 months, and about which current budget talk is concerned.

Therefore while the Republicans have said nothing about it publicly, overall factors favor an even greater tax reduction—provided production can be restored.

Now some authorities have criticized the Republican theory already of slashing a straight 20 per cent across the individual income board, saying one class should receive more, or less. The truth is the flat cut is economically urgent today because the hipayers are the ones who are stalled. High spending is evident but not from income in the middle and top brackets. From a man earning say $10,000 a year, the government takes from his income on an average of $2,347, which means that he works nearly 3 months a year solely for the government, giving all his income to it, and only 9 months a year for himself—while the $50 a week man works at little more than 5 weeks a year for the federal government. An equally proportioned cut would give the hipayer far more than a 20 percent reduction.

Spastic Colitis—The Part Played by Nervous Tension

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

THE bowel is a muscular tube and these muscles, like those in other parts of the body, have a normal and regular pattern of contraction and relaxation. In some nervous individuals, however, the bowel muscles are overly contracted and remain in a constant state of tension, causing the bowel to become contracted in some portions.

When this state of affairs continues over long periods of time, we have a condition known as spastic colitis. Most individuals with this disorder will begin to show more or less severe symptoms before the age of forty. Usually they complain chiefly of abdominal pain and constipation, though in some instances there may also be passage of mucus from the bowel. The pain in the abdomen tends to be worse during times of strain or tension, and in women, during the time of the regular monthly period. The pain seldom bothers the patient at night. It is made worse by cold and relieved by warmth. The pain for the most part is in the lower part of the abdomen.

Symptoms of Colitis

Most of the patients with spastic colitis are constipated and many have an excess of gas in the bowel. This gas causes rumbling noises and swelling or distention of the abdomen. Sometimes there is a burning pain along the entire course of the large bowel. Even in those who are constipated there may be alternating attacks of diarrhea. In addition to these symptoms affecting the abdomen there may also be nervousness, depression and a general exhaustion, nausea, paleness, and rapid and noticeable beating of the heart.

While the exact cause of spastic colitis is not known definitely, it is generally believed to be due to nervous disturbances. The patients are likely to be of a nervous temperament. However, in many cases the condition is aggravated by the use of laxatives.

Treating the Disorder

In treating this disorder, reassurance of the patient is one of the most important steps. He must be made to realize that his disorder is not a serious one. Then he must be taught to adjust his life so as to avoid strain insofar as is possible. He should be encouraged to be less conscious of his bowel.

Most of the patients with spastic colitis do best on a so-called bland diet, that is, one which contains no bulky or irritating foods. Mineral oil may also be useful. Such drugs as belladonna may help to relieve the bowel spasms. But, of course, it should be employed only under the directions of a physician.

I have outlined a bland diet, and I shall be glad to send this information to those desiring it, to aid in following their physician's advice. A stamped, self-addressed envelope should be enclosed. Names will not be used.

STARS SAY—

For Wednesday, November, 20

A SUDDEN and quite unexpected and unpredictable turn of events may be responsible for remarkable and dramatic developments of far-reaching bearing on the future fortunes. It might be a surprising flash of genius, a novel or unique way of igniting lagging elements into spectacular action, attracting cooperation from unforeseen sources. While aggressive and direct attack on such objectives should flourish, the most subtle finesse might bring more revolutionary denouements.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may be exhilarated into highly productive and thrilling activities by a sudden burst of inspiration or genius, a new and bold idea of revolutionary importance having far-reaching influence on the life and those attachments of romantic and creative adventure or aspirations. Such a spectacular or explosive plan of discovery might incite to public esteem or dramatic form of approbation. There are singular as well as subtle factors to be deftly and shrewdly manipulated. Be alert to craft.

A child born on this day might possess some special genius of creative importance, inventive and dramatic, with promise of an adventurous and romantic career.

CHAPTER TWENTY-EIGHT

"Oh, Lydia, you are, darling," Mrs. Hewlett said with obvious relief to someone who had come at Lydia's back.

She came around and faced Lydia. It was Lydia. "I'm sure you children have a great deal in common and I'm just going to leave you alone," Mrs. Hewlett said, smiling, as she edged away.

It was rude to think it so suddenly, but Lydia doubted that she had anything in common with this tall, brown-haired, brown-eyed girl.

Although she was pretty, quite pretty, and poised and smartly dressed in brown, there was something missing in Lydia, a lack somewhere of which she herself was painfully aware. She had filled the gap with insincerity and her animation was only a pose.

Nor had the situation been handled very subtly. For it was all too clear that no spirit of neighborliness had prompted the invitation. She could hear Lydia saying to her mother, "Since you're having some friends in, it would be a good excuse for me to meet Chris's wife. Call her up and ask her to come. I'm curious to see the girl he married."

"Shall we sit over there?" Eugene asked, pointing to a far corner of the large, beautifully furnished room. "And I'll see that you get some tea."

She glanced back and smiled. But her smile was a pose, too, a rehearsed sort of smile to reveal large and perfect teeth. There was also something disconcertingly descending in her manner and her smile.

When they were seated on the most intimate-looking of little sofas, Lydia came to the point at once.

"Do tell me about Chris. I'm away a good deal, but mother wrote me about him, all about his being back and married. I was in school before the war, but when I was home for weekends I always knew what time it was on Sunday mornings when I saw Chris riding. He had two of the most gorgeous horses I've ever seen. Of course I rode with him several times and I was sick when mother wrote he'd had to sell them."

"He had to sell them when he enlisted. I'm sorry. I never saw them."

Eugenia looked intense. "He—he was wounded, wasn't he? It seems to me that mother wrote me about that, too."

"Yes," Lydia said. "In the leg. He has a stiff leg. He has to use a cane."

Eugenia waved a flippancy hand. "Oh, but he'll get over it, won't he? I mean it's only temporary, isn't it? So many of them do limp at first. I know a boy who limped frightfully at first, but now you wouldn't know that anything had been wrong."

Lydia shook her head and her eyes were quiet and steady.

"But Chris's injury isn't temporary. It's permanent."

Eugenia opened her eyes wider. "Is it? And you married him, knowing that? How brave you are!"

Lydia could feel her anger mounting.

"There's nothing brave about it when you marry the man you love."

"But doesn't it . . . I mean doesn't it present all sorts of problems?"

"Doesn't it present problems. . . What was she getting at?"

"Most certainly it does." Eugene wriggled a little closer.

"I see. I suppose I don't understand very well. Mother said she never knew you and I was a little curious."

A LITTLE curious! Lydia said, "We've been living very quietly. You do live quietly, you know, when there are obstacles to overcome." It was getting very involved, she thought, but she was loath to do more than scratch the surface of Chris's adjustment.

Waves of color rolled in on Eugenia's narrow cheeks.

"You mean . . . Oh, don't think I'm horrible . . . but I'm so interested in anything about Chris . . . we have been neighbors so long. You don't mean you're—you're getting a divorce or anything like that, do you?"

Lydia tried not to stare too hard. She tried neither to laugh with pity nor to be angry.

"I didn't make myself quite clear," she said. "The obstacles I meant were physical ones from Chris's being in the war."

"Oh!" It was a sharp exclamation as the waves of color rolled out of her cheeks. "Oh, I see. That's fine. Won't you have more tea? Yes, do."

"Do you suppose it'll ever stop raining? I came home for the spring here. I've been in Canada visiting my aunt, my father's sister, in a little town that was mostly a military post. I had the most marvelous time. . . . But I practically wore out everything I own. Now the weather here is horrible. I'm sorry I came home. I had the most marvelous time. But I think I'll try to find a little place in town and get a job and be really serious about it. Enough of this fidgeting away my time. Photography is the real love of my life. I'm not going to think of getting married for years and years. . . ."

You want to be married so desperately and you are so desperately afraid of being "left" that you had your mother ask me here this afternoon in the hope that Chris's and my marriage wasn't working out. . . . Why do you give yourself away like this? Why do you make yourself an object of pity to me? You are trying so desperately to convince yourself that you don't want the thing your heart cries for. You didn't have a marvelous time in Canada. You had a ghastly time.

Lydia said, "The world is terribly unstable now, and it is a good idea to postpone some decisions until later." She didn't know what to say.

"I'm glad to hear you say that. Of course mother thinks I'm silly not to marry. But I've always said that a girl should have a fling at some sort of career first. If she doesn't do it before she marries, she isn't likely to later on. And, frankly, so much has been spent on my education it seems a shame not to use some of it."

Lydia squashed her cigaret. Then she looked directly at Eugenia and said, "There's a good bit to be said in favor of the life of a spinster, too. Of course I don't mean you. I just happened to think of a discussion I had with some girls at school and all the good points I thought of for being a spinster. A war kills not only husbands, but potential husbands. There are probably a good many girls who won't marry because some boy they were never to know was killed."

"And so many of them have married English and Australian girls and girls from other countries." Her voice dropped low. Then brightening a little she added, "Since you've thought it out so carefully, at least you did once, I'd like to hear your points in favor of spinsterhood sometime. It sounds terribly amusing. I'd like to know how they stack up against the lives of some of mother's unmarried women friends."

Lydia said, "It isn't particularly amusing. It's simply that you don't have to be married in order to have a full and interesting life. And I know some case histories to prove it."

"You must tell me more about it sometime." She laughed alight. "What a queer conversation we're having! But it's fun, rather, isn't it, rather than the usual brand? As soon as I can convince mother that I'm not interested in uniforms and that I'm really serious about a job I'll call you and we'll get together. Maybe in town for lunch."

You think I can help you, Lydia thought. I want to help Kirby. . . . But you think that possibly there is something I can tell you that will give you hope, not for a husband, but for a life without a husband for a girl "left out." . . . Everyone's been getting married except you, Eugenia. All the girls you know married before the men left or when they came home on leave or they are definitely going to be married soon now that the war is over. Everyone except you. They've called you and told you their hurriedly gathered plans. You've been to some of the weddings. You've drunk champagne at the receptions. You've seen them go away together. Everyone except you. . . . No one has wanted to marry you. Perhaps no one ever will, you think.

"The Authority on Authorities"

SUIT IS BADLY DIVIDED

WHENEVER a defender, whom you rank as an able performer, leads a suit which you or your partner had bid strongly, you can nearly always soundly consider that the outstanding cards of it are very badly divided. Either the lead is a singleton, or else it is from a holding so long that the leader thinks his partner has a very short holding in the suit, perhaps void of it. Rarely the lead is to avoid pitching away from tenace or guarded honors in other suits, or to destroy the timing.

West led the spade Q, then the J to the K. East, who could easily read both hidden hands as now void of spades, decided to switch to his singleton club. South, an incurable optimist, won it with the dummy's J and then took three high trumps, hoping that both hearts and clubs would prove to be evenly divided. He was badly disappointed when East discarded on the second round. Now he knew he would have club trouble also.

Three high clubs went through, but when South lost the next to West's 10, the latter took out his final trump with the heart J, then scored the setting trick with the diamond A.

After East's club lead to the third trick, South should have been sure the suit would not break and should have attempted a safety play. After winning with the J, then taking one top trump, he should have led the club 5 and ruffed with the heart 10, not caring if East had the J to over-ruff; if he had, the trump 9 would have set up. When that won, he should have returned with the heart 7 to the K, played the Q and then run clubs until he drove out West's heart J. The diamond A then would have been West's last trick, and the contract would have been made.

Inside WASHINGTON

Murray May Request CIO
Vote Condemning "Comms"

House Agricultural Chief
Is Farm Problem Expert

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—History will have a chance to repeat itself at the CIO convention in Atlantic City late this month. Six years ago in the same city Philip Murray, in accepting the presidency of the organization as successor to John L. Lewis, insisted upon passage of a resolution condemning Communists in the CIO.

Murray will go to the 1946 convention under pressure from many top CIO leaders to repeat his performance. In fact, some CIO officials are urging an outright purge of the left-wingers.

For six years Murray has tried to harmonize differences of the left and right-wingers and hold the organization together. The recent election results, generally interpreted as a blow at left-wing sentiment, may have convinced him the time has come to clean house.

If he does so, some observers believe that a merger of the AFL and CIO might be possible in the not too distant future. The right-wing majority of CIO could be welded with the AFL into a powerful American labor body and the left-wingers left to wither and die alone.

THE GOP LANDSLIDE puts a newcomer at the helm of the House agriculture committee. He is Rep. Clifford Hope (R) of Kansas, considered by both parties as one of the ablest men in the House on farm problems.

Hope replaces Rep. John Flannagan (D) of Virginia who took over after the death of Rep. Hampton Fulmer (D) of South Carolina. Observers see a close working agreement between Hope and a former colleague who served on the committee—Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson.

They see, also, the possibility of a "tough" period ahead for the GOP farm boys in Congress. They fear that continuation of high war-time agricultural production may result in a surplus headache, with farmers producing more foodstuffs than the demand will stand. It was pointed out that United States agricultural exports are expected to decline when Europe gets her war-ravaged farms back into production. This would leave the United States "holding the bag" with large backlogs of farm products.

Best bet: Watch for Senator George Aiken (R) of Vermont to re-introduce his food stamp plan to use up surpluses to feed the needy in this country.

20th Anniversary Of DAR Chapter Observed

Hugh Huntington Is Speaker; 75 Attend Dinner-Meeting

Twentieth anniversary of the Pickaway Plains chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution was celebrated with a covered dish dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clark K. Hunsicker, West Union street, Tuesday evening.

Hugh Huntington, Columbus, guest speaker, was introduced by Mrs. Walter Kindler. He used as his subject, "Old Wills and Inheritance Tax". Will he said, reflect the character of the man who made the will or rather the custom of the day when the will was made. James Smithson, an eccentric Englishman, who had never set foot in America, left a fortune to the then, new Republic. The Smithsonian Institute was founded on this money.

Henry T. Page, Circleville, in his will, gave the greatest private gift ever received at Ohio State University. Page Hall of Ohio State University is named for him. After 75 years it is still considered the greatest private gift.

Hannah Nell in her will founded the Hannah Nell Mission. Calvin Coolidge made his will while president of the United States. It consisted of 23 words and was written on White House stationery. Mary Ball Washington, mother of the President, George Washington, in her will of 1778, willed her slave girl to her grandson to be his and his heir's forever. Mr. Huntington presented a photostatic copy of this will to the Pickaway Plains chapter.

He said he had given his talk on wills many times but that his reason for doing so was to keep alive the memory of those who have done so much for the boys and girls of Ohio.

Mr. Huntington said inheritance in the last generation has assumed great importance. The inheritance tax in small estates is not large but increases in proportion to the size of the estate.

Mrs. Clark Hunsicker, organizing regent of the Pickaway Plains chapter, read excerpts from many letters and clippings she has collected during the 20 years of the chapter's existence. Mrs. Herbert Backus, Springfield, state regent, was the installing officer at the founding of the chapter.

Seventy-five members and guests enjoyed the dinner which preceded the program and Mrs. Charles Pugsley, regent, introduced Mrs. James B. Patton, state regent from Columbus; Mrs. William H. Adams, Grandview, state director of the central district, and Mr. Adams, Out-of-town guests included Mrs. John Graham, Lancaster, past state chairman, and Mr. Graham, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Huntington, Columbus; Miss Mary Barrere, Hillsboro; Mr. and Mrs. John Dunlap, Williamsport, and Mrs. Joseph Paul, Oberlin.

To open the meeting Mrs. James Moffitt sang one verse of the Star Spangled Banner and Mrs. R. R. Bales led the salute to the flag. The group sang, "America the Beautiful" at the close of the evening.

Soap and water cleaning usually is enough for stainless steel knives. Sometimes, however, a film forms on them which is not easily removed with soap and water. This film yields to a mild scouring powder applied with a soft, damp cloth. Rubbing with a soft, dry cloth also brings up the lustre. Knives should be washed and dried as soon as possible after using because certain foods containing salt and acids are apt to pit the metal if left on for an extended period.

WYATT READY TO ASK MORE FEDERAL HELP

Housing Expediter Prepares Report To President On Veterans' Homes

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—Housing Expediter Wilson W. Wyatt put finishing touches today on a report to President Truman in which he was expected to ask for new federal aids to encourage more rental housing for veterans.

Sales price tags on most new houses are too high for the average ex-serviceman's budget, Wyatt was expected to say.

It was reported the housing chief would also call for:

1. More pressure behind his plan for mass-produced, assembly-line houses, on which unit costs could be lowered; approval of pending government loans to get the assembly lines moving.

2. Retention of tight controls on non-residential building, priorities for home builders, and of orders channeling a big share of scarce materials into veteran's homes.

3. New legislation, much like the Wagner-Ellender-Taft bill that died in the 79th congress, to include some government housing for low-income veterans who can't compete in the commercial market.

Mr. Truman asked for Wyatt's proposals on Nov. 9 when he killed all price controls but those on rents, sugar and rice. He had been warned by Wyatt that removal of ceilings from building materials would endanger the housing program.

Even before the decontrol order Wyatt was worried over an inflationary trend in real estate and building. Now the condition will be greatly aggravated, he fears.

Rental housing would be the ideal answer, he was expected to tell Mr. Truman. Industrialized housing ranks high on Wyatt's list of remedies for the high cost of home building.

So far his plans in this field have been blocked by refusal of the reconstruction finance corporation to approve $90,000,000 in loans, recommended by Wyatt for prospective assembly-line home builders.

It was possible Wyatt's recommendations would be delivered to the President at his vacation retreat in Key West, Fla.

Meanwhile, John H. Fahey, commissioner of the federal home loan bank administration, warned against the danger of inflationary mortgages based on excessive prices for homes.

"We should face squarely the fact that we are in the midst of the most serious inflation of real estate prices in our history and that many thousands of veterans and others are being forced to buy homes they cannot afford and will be unable to pay for," he said.

Therefore, Fahey said, it is essential that financial institutions involved in mortgaging "do everything in their power to curb present trends and bring down the prices of homes and apartments."

SUGGESTIONS TO KEEP 'GREEN' CORN OFFERED

Following a late Spring, some Ohio corn may not be dry enough to be stored in an ordinary manner, warns Marvin Losey, head of the grain and feed products division of the Farm Bureau Cooperative Association, Columbus. Such corn, he said, is likely to heat on warm Fall days if piled deep in big cribs, or it may spoil next Spring.

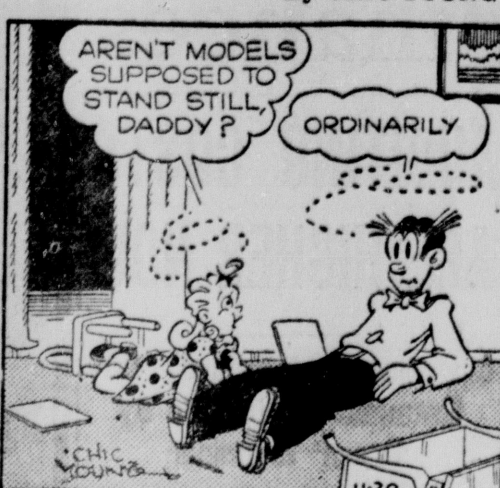

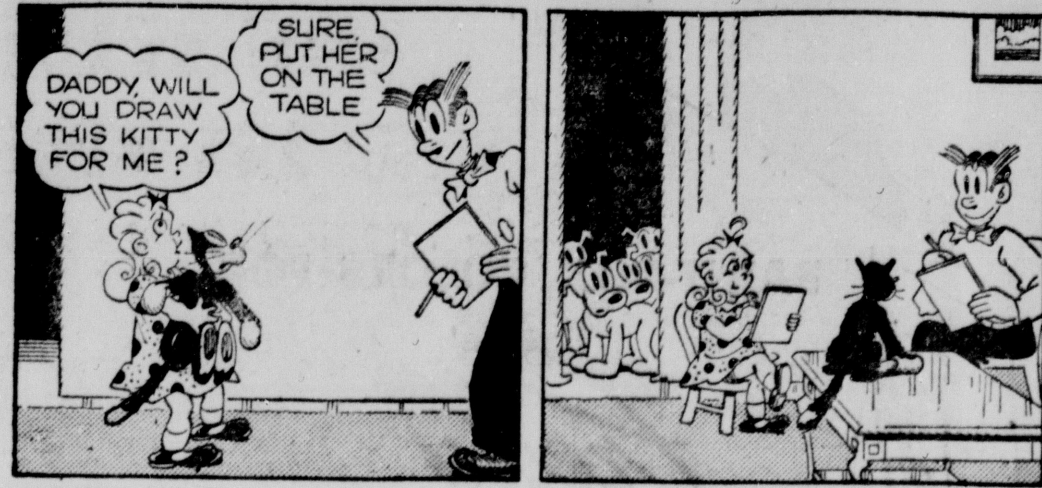

Many losses were reported by farmers in the Fall of 1945, Losey said, and similar losses may occur again if proper steps of prevention are not taken. Local elevators are equipped to make rapid tests on shelled corn, and can aid farmers who are uncertain regarding moisture content. Moisture content should not be more than 20 percent for safe storage, he said.

Various types of ventilating equipment is available to aid in drying stored corn but unless favorable weather exists, "not too good results" should be expected, Losey warned, unless the system uses heat and forced ventilation such as is used in hybrid seed plants.

Different types of ventilators that can be installed in a crib to increase the air movement through the corn are described in the U. S. Department of Agriculture bulletin 1976 which is available through the office of the county agricultural agent. The effect of these ventilators is to reduce the thickness of

Council Hears Four Ordinances

NEW BOULEVARD LIGHTS MAY BE INSTALLED SOON

Sewer Improvements Studied By Councilmen; Reports Read At Meeting

Initial readings of four ordinances, one of which provides $5,000 for materials to be used in sewer improvements, and disclosure that Circleville's downtown boulevard lighting system may be installed by Christmas, featured a meeting of the city council Tuesday night.

A report of the city's financial condition was read and approved. It showed a balance of $87,391.28.

John C. Goeller, council president, was ill at his home. Other members absent from Tuesday night's session were Ray Anderson and John Eshelman. William M. Reid presided in place of Goeller. The only other councilmen present were George L. Crites and Ray Cook.

First reading was given four ordinances by Clerk Fred R. Nicholas. Each is an amendment to the annual appropriation ordinance and they provide (1) $1,500 from the gas tax fund to the city service department for labor, (2) $4,000 for Berger hospital from the general fund, (3) unspecified amount for services of an engineer for the service department, (4) and $5,000 for the service department for purchase of sewer materials.

Following the reading of the fourth ordinance Councilman Cook asked: "Where are these sewers?" During the discussion that ensued Service Director Clarence Helvering revealed that the sewer improvements are in South Court street, Collins addition, Crist addition, Highland avenue addition, and Clinton street.

Informing the council that the work of installing the boulevard lights has already been started by the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric company Service Director Helvering and Mayor Ben H. Gordon asserted the new downtown lights may be in operation by Christmas. The mayor and service director said that shipments of poles and other necessary materials, delayed for several months, are now reportedly enroute to Circleville.

Authorized by council in April the new 37-unit boulevard lighting system will cost the municipality $1,788 a year and there will be no installation cost to the city. The power company will install the system on Court and Main streets. The 37 lights will be operated all night, every night in the year.

The financial report of the city, covering the period from Nov. 1 to 19, was submitted by Councilman Crites, chairman of the finance committee. The report listed: General fund, receipts $1,058.29, expenditures $2,171.32, balance $22,767.01; sewage disposal fund, receipts $375, expenditures $733.01, balance $1,748.11; library fund, receipts, none, expenditures $252.54, balance $7,537.66; auto street repair fund, receipts $35, expenditures $705.78, balance $4,410.93; gas tax fund, receipts none, expenditures $91.87, balance $2,939.93; hospital fund, receipts $2,411.82, expenditures $2,573.54, balance $8,512.61; and waterworks fund, receipts $4,171.61, expenditures $1,248.57, balance $39,475.63. Safety Director Thurman Miller submitted a report for Berger hospital, covering the month of October, listing expenses $4,071.81 and collections $4,575.87. Council approved the report.

AUDITING COSTS ARE HIGHER NOW

Councilmen Informed City Examination Held Up By 'Green' Examiner

In a further airing of the Circleville city council's indignation over a bill for $851.69 from State Auditor Joseph Ferguson covering a recent audit of the city's books and records Councilman George L. Crites informed council Tuesday night that he had made inquiry at the state auditor's office concerning the alleged excessive sum.

Councilman Crites said he was told that Examiner Peter C. Rockel had brought another examiner with him for the audit in Circleville and that the second man, Lamar Foster, was inexperienced in the work and that as a result the state's bill to the city was higher than usual.

It was disclosed that the bill for $851.69 included $12 a day for Rockel and $8 a day for Foster, plus their expenses in traveling from Springfield to Circleville and return over a period of weeks. The bill also included a $57 item for typing the examiners' report.

Councilman Crites said the state auditor's office told him the prices of the examinations have been increased since the last preceding audit in Circleville. Councilman Crites offered a motion, which was passed, instructing City Solicitor George Gerhardt to determine "whether we shall pay for educating a state examiner."

The bill for auditing had been discussed at the Nov. 5 council session.

Rescuers Near Wrecked Army Plane

U. S. GENERAL PASSENGER ON CRASHED C-53

Three Generals' Wives Are Among 11 Passengers Stranded In Alps

PARIS, Nov. 20—U. S. Army rescue planes converging from three countries today spotted the C-53 transport which crashed in a snow-filled French Alpine valley with 11 persons aboard, including one general and three generals' wives.

Weak radio messages from the grounded plane disclosed that five, and possibly six, of the 11 persons had been injured seriously. No body was killed in the crash.

U. S. Army officials at Wiesbaden announced that two A-26 bombers had sighted the disabled plane about 20 miles southeast of Grenoble, near the Italian frontier, during the morning. They circled the wreckage.

Rescue parties of mountain climbers carrying food and blankets were reported nearing the scene after an all-night fight against snow and steep cliffs.

U. S. Army headquarters in Vienna announced that the following persons were aboard the plane:

Brig. Gen. Loyal Haynes, head of Gen. Mark Clark's advisory group, and Mrs. Haynes; Col. William C. McMahon, recent chief of staff in Austria, returning home, Mrs. McMahon and their 11-year-old daughter, Alice Mary; Mrs. Ralph H. Tate, wife of Brig. Gen. Ralph H. Tate, Clark's deputy commander, and Mrs. Alberta Snavely, wife of Brig. Gen. Ralph Snavely, head of the American air force in Austria.

Capt. Ralph H. Tate, Jr., was pilot of the crashed plane. Other crew members were 2nd Lt. Irving Matthews, co-pilot; Sgt. Louis Hill and Staff Sgt. Wayne G. Felson. All were stationed at Tulin field, Austria.

Generals Tate and Snavely left Vienna for the crash scene today in a flying fortress. Capt. Thomas Mervine, a surgeon, accompanied them. Rescue planes carrying medical supplies and blankets to be dropped took off from France and Tulin, Italy.

The Vienna headquarters said five persons were seriously injured, but did not announce their names. A radio report from the (Continued on Page Two)

'Open War' Declared In Holy Land

BULLETIN
JERUSALEM, Nov. 20—A heavy explosion shattered the building occupied by the income tax and press censorship offices in Jerusalem this afternoon. There was no immediate report on casualties.

JERUSALEM, Nov. 20—Jewish Irgun Zvai Leumi extremists declared open war today against Hagana, the moderate Jewish underground army, and warned that they would "reply with bullets" to Hagana's "anti-terrorist" campaign in Palestine.

Long-smouldering Irgun grievances against Hagana were aired in handbills distributed throughout the all-Jewish city of Tel Aviv.

The pamphlets proclaimed an "all out war" against the underground army in answer to Hagana's militant "educational campaign" to end violence in the Holy Land. Hagana agents recently raided and destroyed extremist caches of weapons and ammunition.

"Hagana put the clock back two years when Irgun leaders were persecuted," the leaflets said "but this time Irgun won't be silent. We have cooperated with Hagana (Continued on Page Two)

RIVER VICTIM IS IDENTIFIED

Man Found Near Circleville Was Jacob Jones, 72, Columbus Resident

Scioto river drowning victim, whose body was found Tuesday afternoon four miles north of Circleville, was identified Tuesday night as Jacob Jones, 72, of 506 Mt. Vernon avenue, Columbus.

The identification was made at the Albaugh mortuary by the victim's sister-in-law, Mrs. Eliza Jones, 191 St. Clair avenue, Columbus. The body then was removed to the Whitthauer and Son funeral home, Columbus.

Mrs. Jones came to Circleville after Pickaway County Sheriff Charles Radcliff, recalling that a man named Jake Jones spent several days in the county jail in October, telephoned to the Franklin county sheriff's department and asked that a search be made for Jones' relatives.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2 p. m. Friday at the Columbus funeral home and burial will be in Evergreen cemetery, Columbus. Mr. Jones was unmarried. He formerly lived in Tennessee and he was the son of Henry Jones and Caroline Jones.

Sheriff Radcliff and Deputies Carl Radcliff and Ralph Leist, summoned to the scene after Ernest Goldsberry, South Scioto street, came upon the body while he was hunting and trapping, removed it from the water. The sheriff said Mr. Jones' pockets contained 41 cents and also an envelope from the Franklin county division of aid for the aged. The envelope contained a $1 bill. There was no identification clues on the body of the drowning victim. The body had apparently been in the water about 48 hours.

Mrs. Jones told officials that Mr. Jones had often wandered away from home.

SEARCH ON FOR COUPLE MISSING FROM SAILBOAT

ST. SIMON, Ga., Nov. 20—Coast Guard surface craft and a dumbo PBV search plane patrolled Georgia coastal waters off legendary Black Beard island today for two persons still missing from a sailing yacht that ran aground during a howling northeaster, drowning at least two of the six passengers.

Chief Boatswain Mate William E. Fulcher, commanding a Coast Guard crash boat at the scene, radioed his base that Mr. and Mrs. Ted Sienzak of Detroit had survived the accident and had made shore on Black Beard.

RUSSIANS UPSET AGREEMENT ON TRIESTE ISSUE

Belated Appeal To Italy And Yugoslavia Crosses Up Big 4 Plans

NEW YORK, Nov. 20—The Soviet Union may have upset big four prospects for an early final agreement on Trieste today with a surprise and belated appeal to Italy and Yugoslavia to settle their dispute over the city and their future frontier by direct negotiation.

The Soviet move was tantamount to an invitation to Italy and Yugoslavia to ignore the big four agreement reached earlier this week for setting up an Anglo-American type of international regime in the proposed free territory of Trieste.

(The British broadcasting corporation reported that the Italian foreign office in Rome already had announced instructions to its ambassador, Alberto Tarchiani, in Washington, to enter at once direct negotiations with the Yugoslav ambassador to the United States, Sava Kasanovich.)

Secretary of State James F. Byrnes was understood to still look skeptically on the prospect of successful Italo-Yugoslav negotiations at this point. A week ago he threw a bucket of cold water on Yugoslavia's initial move to start private talks with Italy. But that was while the big four were completely deadlocked over Trieste.

Byrnes is not expected to object formally to direct Italo-Yugoslav negotiations if both sides want them. He is morally committed to such procedure having made a great fuss in Paris about the fact that Italy and Austria had amicably settled their dispute over South Tyrol by such a method.

But Byrnes also is unlikely to second Soviet Foreign Minister Vyacheslav M. Molotov's warm encouragement to Italy and Yugoslavia, especially now that he has Molotov committed to the kind of international regime for Trieste that the U. S. has been fighting for since last Summer.

The big four will meet again late today after a one-day recess to continue discussion of unsettled odds and ends of the proposed Trieste statute. The big four has not yet answered formally Italy's original letter asking advice on whether to proceed with direct negotiations with Yugoslavia.

The first move in the direction of direct negotiations was made by Yugoslavia recently when Italian communist leader Palmiro Togliatti brought back to Rome from Marshal Tito an offer to trade Trieste for the city of Gorizia—Italy to keep the former if she would cede the latter to Yugoslavia.

AMVETS WILL BE ASKED TO OPPOSE JOHN L. LEWIS

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 20—American Veterans of World War II will be asked at the opening of their third annual convention here tomorrow to take a definite stand against John L. Lewis, it was announced today.

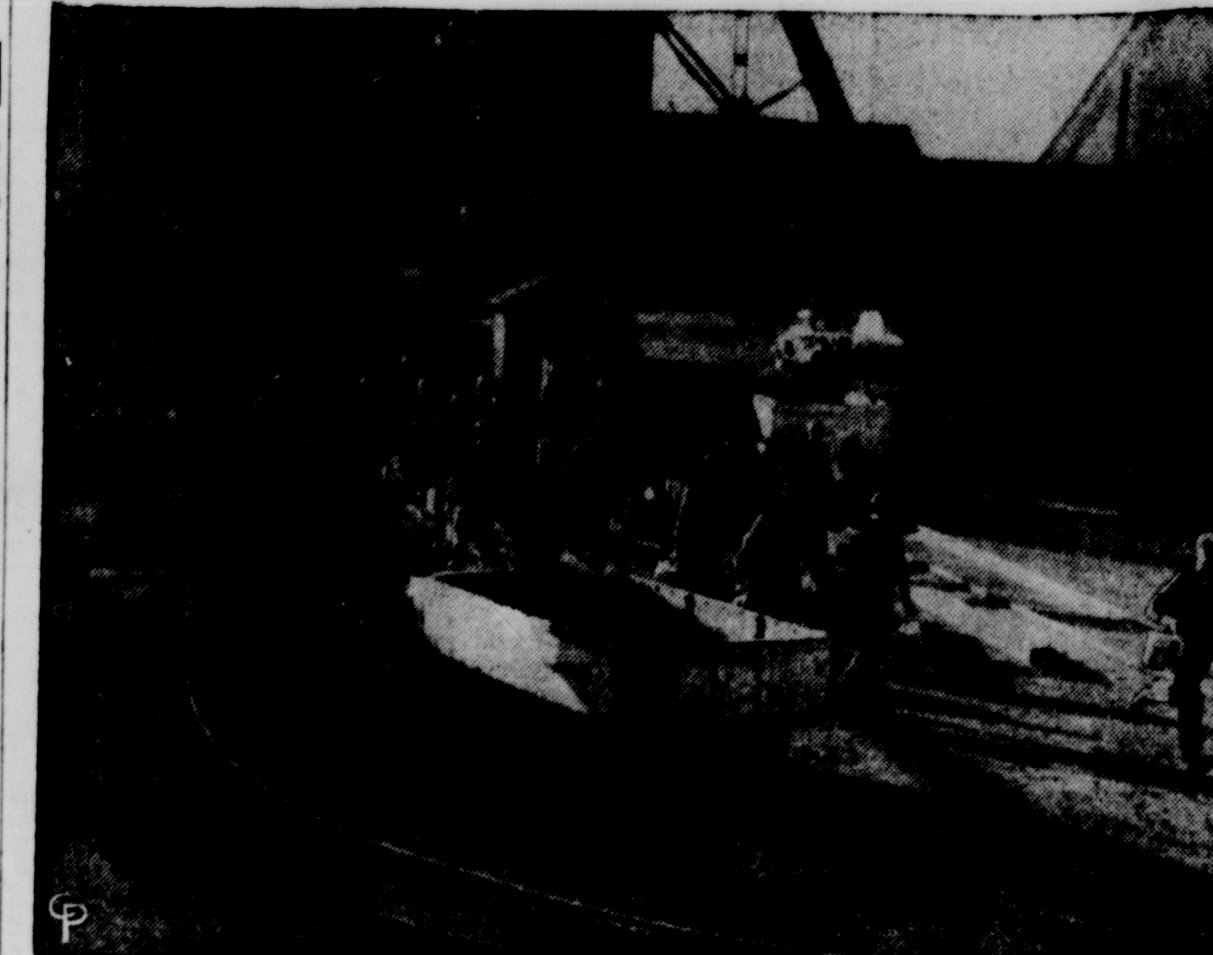

In a statement before the AMVETS national executive committee, Jack W. Hardy, national commander, charged Lewis with "sabotaging all of the legitimate gains of labor and defying attempts of the American government to maintain national peace and order."

Hardy told the committee at a pre-convention session, that he will read a full statement to the general convention and urge the Amvets to "take action to back the American people on the road toward industrial and labor peace through intelligent planning and cooperation."

FIVE KILLED IN LAUNDRY BLAST

Authorities Making Check To Learn Total Injured By $500,000 Explosion

GREENVILLE, S. C., Nov. 20—Authorities made a survey of hospitals in surrounding communities today in an effort to determine the number of casualties in last night's tremendous explosion which leveled the block-long Ideal Laundry killing five and injuring more than 150 persons in the neighborhood.

The explosion was heard 30 miles away at Spartanburg. Several buildings and residences within the immediate area were demolished.

The death list included J. Carl Trammell, laundry superintendent, Wiley Mimms, office manager for the Nehi Bottling company, both white, and negroes Jerline Simpson, Mamie Earle and Mary Brown.

The blast came shortly after some 40 employees had reported for the night shift.

Authorities expressed the belief that a leak in a huge tank connected with the explosion.

U. S. FARMERS FACE SHORTAGE OF FERTILIZER

CHICAGO, Nov. 20—The nation's farmers face the most acute fertilizer shortage in history and already millions of acres of land have been lost to productive use because of a lack of minerals, the chief conservation engineer for the Tennessee Valley authority said today.

Neil Bass, chief TVA conservationist, told the 32nd annual meeting of the Illinois agricultural association that farmers need, and are ready to buy, fertilizer but are blocked because of their great distance from raw material sources and producing points. Many farmers, he said, are without fertilizer because its use is relatively new in their areas and trade channels are not well established.

HANNEGAN ILL, READY TO QUIT

Democrats Looking For New Committee Chairman, Postmaster General

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20—The Democratic national committee was operating today without a chairman for all practical purposes and the question before President Truman was who should succeed 43-year-old Robert E. Hannegan in that job.

Mr. Truman may have to look for a new postmaster general, also. Announcement that Hannegan had been ordered to take a complete rest was accompanied by word from his associates that he was expected to resign the committee chairmanship shortly. His cabinet tenure will depend, the United Press was informed, on how much his vacation improves his health.

Hannegan suffers from high blood pressure, an affliction not uncommon in politics, and will be away from Washington until Jan. 15.

Gov. Robert S. Kerr of Oklahoma, whose term now is expiring, is most prominently mentioned as Hannegan's successor as committee chairman. Hannegan's own choice probably would be second assistant postmaster general Gael Sullivan. Others whose names have figured in speculation are price administrator Paul Porter and undersecretary of interior Oscar Chapman.

The Democratic national committee is tentatively scheduled to meet here in January at which time Hannegan's resignation would (Continued on Page Two)

COSHOCTON FIRE SWEEPING BLOCK OUT OF CONTROL

COSHOCTON, O., Nov. 20—Fire that broke out in a drugstore here today has destroyed three first floor storerooms and is now sweeping through the Park hotel. Police said it was completely out of control.

Coshocton fire and police officials called for aid from West Lafayette, Newcomerstown and Zanesville fire departments.

The first alarm was sounded at 7 a. m., and at 8:45 police said the Montgomery-Ward business block was threatened with destruction.

It was believed by police that all occupants of the 50 or 60 room hotel had escaped without injury. The structure, a Coshocton county courthouse.

FRENCH SOCIALIST NAMED PRESIDENT OF UNESCO

PARIS, Nov. 20—Leon Blum, French socialist leader, was elected president of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization today in a compromise between American and British demands for the presidency.

The unanimous election of Blum had been foreshadowed by a morning session, the first business meeting of the organization after its formal opening yesterday, at which the delegates agreed that France should get the presidency.

LEWIS WATCHED FOR LAST MINUTE MOVE AGAINST INJUNCTION

Troops Alerted As Midnight Deadline For UMW Compliance With Injunction Nears; Lewis Risking Jail

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20—Army troops were alerted today and an air of tension gripped the nation as the zero hour drew steadily nearer for a walkout by John L. Lewis' soft coal miners at midnight tonight.

Justice department officials watched Lewis closely in the belief he would make a sudden last minute legal maneuver to upset the government's campaign in the courts to prevent the mine shutdown.

Both sides in the dispute were conducting a war of nerves, Lewis by his silence, his United Mine Workers by their wildcat walkouts, and the government by its reminder that troops might be sent into the coal fields. More than 100,000 miners already were idle, striking prematurely to support Lewis in his battle with the administration.

Justice department officials believed Lewis would break his silence today by moving into court to contest the restraining order obtained by the government. The order directed him to revoke a contract termination notice which the government interpreted as a signal for the miners to strike at midnight tonight in government-operated bituminous mines.

If he failed to comply, Lewis risked jail or a fine for contempt of court.

Government attorneys said two days notice ordinarily would be required for the court order to be cancelled or changed, but the justice department was reported ready to waive the two-day requirement and argue the case immediately.

President Truman was following developments from his vacation retreat in Florida, and steel mills and other coal-consuming industries were ready to start curtailing operations at once if a strike developed.

Freight Embargo Planned
The office of defense transportation, preparing for any eventuality, was drafting a freight embargo under which only most essential commodities would be given priorities for rail transportation. ODT already has ordered a 25 per cent cut in service on coal-burning passenger trains, effective Monday.

The threat of troops was raised in a war department announcement that the Army was ready to cooperate in response to any call from Secretary of Interior J. A. (Continued on Page Two)

Union Convention Adopts Resolution Condemning Government Action

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 20—The CIO today joined the fight of John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers (AFL), against the injunction granted to the federal government by a District of Columbia federal court.

The convention adopted a resolution condemning the issuance of injunctions in labor disputes, including a surprise amendment offered by the resolutions committee condemning the action of the federal government in the coal strike threat. The resolution said:

"We condemn the action taken by the federal government in obtaining a sweeping injunction against the United Mine Workers of America. This is a clear violation of the Norris-LaGuardia act. No anti-labor injunctions can dispose of the problems now confronting workers who see their earnings shrink before the fast-rising cost of living. American democracy cannot tolerate any attempt to impose economic slavery through vicious anti-labor action."

More Than 100,000 Miners Already Idle

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 20—More than 100,000 of the nation's 400,000 soft coal miners stayed away from the pits today as the hour drew near for the second industry-wide walkout in nine months.

Production was reduced drastically as more miners joined the walkout that was snowballing rapidly toward a general paralysis of the industry at midnight tonight, the hour set by United Mine Workers President John L. Lewis for the expiration of the present contract.

William Hines, director of the UMW district 4 at Uniontown, Pa., predicted that all pits in his district would be closed by the deadline.

"Remember, you can't mine coal with injunctions," he said in reference to the federal government's restraining order preventing Lewis from canceling the contract.

The increased prices will be effective for consumers as the higher priced supplies reach retail stores.

Dealers were swamped with orders, many of which they could not fill.

Coal was reported selling for double its normal amount at the tipplers yesterday as even those communities in the heart of the coal producing regions began to notice shortages.

NAVY SUBMITS REQUEST FOR RECORD BUDGET

Record-Breaking Total Of $5,900,000,000 Asked From New Congress

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—The Navy, with an eye on development of guided missiles and new undersea weapons, has submitted to the budget bureau a record-breaking peacetime request of $5,900,000,000 for the 1948 fiscal year, it was learned today.

The request represents an increase of about $750,000,000 over the revised Navy budget for the current fiscal year, ending next June 30. The Navy's biggest request before the war was for the 1941 fiscal year, when it asked $2,430,000,000.

In its presentation of 1948 estimates, the Navy emphasized the importance it places on adequate funds for construction of a strong submarine force and for research in the guided missile field.

Envisioned in the Navy's undersea program are submarines capable of remaining under water for months if necessary, new power sources and improved weapons.

This new task on naval strategy grew out of the Bikini atomic bomb experiments which did relatively little damage to submerged submarines. Many naval officers now believe the submarine may be the major sea weapon of the future.

To back up its request for guided missile research, the Navy pointed out that any war within the next five to 10 years would be waged with weapons basically similar to those used in World War II.

Only through heavy spending now, the Navy said, can the groundwork be laid for development of radically new weapons.

Anticipating that the 1948 budget request of nearly $6,000,000,000 will be pared down by the budget bureau or the economy-minded 80th congress, the Navy submitted its request with four priority listings.

Holding top priority were the funds the Navy believes mandatory for the national defense. They were followed by money deemed necessary for essential combat readiness, necessary naval efficiency and finally funds listed as "necessary for naval progress."

POLICE PUZZLED ABOUT WHO DID ACTUAL KILLING

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 20.—Authorities declared today they had the killer in custody, but admitted they still don't know who he is or whether he was motivated by love or money when he shot and killed Mrs. Margaret Hutsel, 34, semi-invalid mother last Friday.

Two suspects, each accusing the other, three possible motives and the discovery of the alleged murder gun in a third man's home baffled authorities trying to solve the slaying.

Sheriff's deputies said the slayer was either her husband, Emil, 37, who admitted planning the killing, or Thad Crawford, 30, a Negro. Both are in custody on murder charges.

Hutsel said he planned the killing of his wife because he loved her. He said she was suffering terribly from paralysis and he wanted to put her "out of her misery." Crawford, however, actually shot her to death, he said.

Motive No. 2 for Hutsel was offered by Virginia Atchison, 21, an attractive office worker who went to authorities and told them Hutsel had asked her to marry him before the slaying. She said Hutsel told her his wife did not have long to live and said then "we can be married and live happily."

In western Pennsylvania, the last of Jones & Laughlin Steel corporation's four "captive" mines—the Shannopin—was closed when 650 miners struck. The steel company indicated its operating schedules might be affected within a few days.

A survey showed the following number of miners out in the principal coal-producing states: West Virginia, 25,500; Illinois, 18,000; Alabama, 16,000; Kentucky, 16,100; Pennsylvania, 11,350; Indiana, 6,300; Ohio, 3,000, and Virginia, 2,000.

A report by the solid fuels administration showed that 72,828 miners were idle, forcing the closing of 272 pits. However, SFA

BROADCASTS HALTED

MOSCOW, Nov. 20.—Direct broadcasts from Moscow to American radio networks by American correspondents have come to an end, the Soviet foreign office made plain today. The foreign office decision was revealed in a note to Richard Hottelet, Columbia Broadcasting System correspondent, which said that direct broadcasts had been a temporary war-time expedient.

WOMAN ESCAPEE HELD

A 42-year-old woman escapee from the Columbus State Hospital was arrested at 6:50 p. m. Tuesday in the bus station in Circleville by police at the request of hospital officials.

reports were running behind newspaper surveys. SFA estimated that 633,487 tons of coal were lost by the walkout already. Normal daily production is 2,200,000 tons.

Hines said the miners "realize the power of the federal government and are making no attempt whatever to defy it. All we want to know is who is right in this controversy. When they show us that, we will abide by the decision."

He said the men were willing to work nine hours a day when an emergency existed, but now they feel they should have an eight hour day.

"Efforts are being made to cloud the issue," he added. "But in the end you'll find the hours will be the chief point of controversy."

Sporadic picketing was reported in western Pennsylvania in defiance of the Smith-Connally act. Miners at the Mathies and Somers pits of the Pittsburgh-Consolidated Coal company were turned away at the entrances.

There was little doubt anywhere that the walkout would be 100 per cent effective by the deadline tonight. Even if Lewis changes his mind and bows to a federal court edict it was doubtful if the men would continue working. Many thousands of miners stayed away from the pits last Spring under their "no contract-no work" tradition, even after the union chief called a two weeks truce.

Steel mills made preparations to bank blast furnaces and curtail production sharply by the end of the week. Latest government figures showed steel and rolling mills had only a 35-day supply of coal on hand and coke ovens had only a 23-day supply.

Cuts in steel production would mean immediate slashes in the manufacture of automobiles and hundreds of other items.

Officials in 25 eastern states prepared for a partial brownout.

long enough. Now we are betrayed. . . . We will reply with bullets."

Irgun's war declaration came a few hours after an electrically-detegrated mine exploded near the headquarters of the Jewish agency in Jerusalem. One Jew was injured in the blast. Glass was shattered and walls were cracked along King George avenue where the explosion occurred. The mine exploded 50 feet from the Jewish agency office.

Some observers interpreted the explosion as the first blow in Irgun's war against Hagana, which has cooperated with the Jewish agency in denouncing violence as an instrument of Zionist policy.

(The Red Cross in Atlanta, Ga., area headquarters sent a disaster staff to aid victims whose homes were wrecked.)

Fire Chief Frank Donald reported that plant manager E. R. Haynie had discovered the tank leak shortly before the explosion. He reportedly warned employees to leave the plant, which was one reason the death toll wasn't higher.

The explosion was heard distinctly some seven miles away. Radio station W-F-B-C received a telephone call from a woman in Spartanburg reporting that she had heard the blast.

The entire plant was a tangled mass of masonry and twisted steel. Haynie estimated damage to the laundry at $500,000.

A Latin American assault on Soviet influence in the United Nations today stalemated a UN election and forced delegates into behind-the-scenes maneuvering to unravel the tangle.

The Latin American countries, newly miffed by Russia's stand on the veto, refused to "play ball" in the election of the final two members of the UN economic and social council.

The consistently voted for The Netherlands and Turkey against Soviet-dominated Yugoslavia and Byelorussia. As a result, none of the four candidates could gain the two-thirds majority needed for election. After four ballots, the UN called a delay to permit a back-stage deal. ## OHIO WELFARE GROUP APPROVES HOUSING BILL

COLUMBUS, Nov. 20.—The Ohio Welfare Conference today had endorsed the Wagner-Ellender-Taft Housing Bill as a measure that will solve the veteran's housing problem.

The endorsement came at a banquet meeting of the conference during which officers were elected. David Bouterse, executive director, outlined legislative proposals of the conference.

A new ration of state aid for poor relief to include child welfare service and hospitalization for the indigent will be asked of the general assembly in January, Bouterse said.

The state will be asked to reimburse local governments "at least 75 per cent of their expenditures for those programs," Bouterse told the conference.

Hal H. Griswold, president of the Cleveland welfare federation, was named president of the conference, to succeed Juvenile Court Judge Raymond Smith of Lima.

Everett C. Shimp of the school of social administration, Ohio State University, was named vice president; Mrs. Helen H. Taylor, Toledo, second vice president; and H. H. Shiren, Columbus, was re-elected treasurer.

COLUMBUS, Nov. 20.—Nearly 9,000 Ohio veterans in educational and on-the-job training will lose subsistence benefits unless they turn in a report on their earnings for the past three months by Friday, Ralph H. Stone, deputy veterans administrator warned today.

According to the law, veterans receiving subsistence checks must make the three-month earning report to prove that their income totals have not exceeded $175 a month for single vets and $200 a month for married veterans.

Veterans who do not report their earnings must go through a reinstatement process before they can resume government subsistence, Stone said.

The war department said no actual troop movements had been ordered yet but that it was standing by. Officials hoped no Army action would be necessary.

Krug Can Use Troops

When President Truman ordered the mines seized last May, he authorized Krug to call on the war department for help if necessary in carrying out the purpose of the order, which was to produce coal.

Krug already has ordered notices posted that the mines would remain in operation and that the UMW contract with the government was still in force. Disorders could be expected if any miners attempted to work while others struck.

Lewis gave no sign yesterday of what action he contemplated in response to the slugging battle the administration had begun. The government had refused to negotiate a new wage contract with him and went to court when he asserted the right to terminate the present agreement at midnight tonight.

At the request of Attorney General Tom Clark, U. S. District Judge T. Alan Golaborough issued a temporary restraining order Monday requiring Lewis to withdraw the termination notice and to do nothing to encourage a mine be accepted and a successor sought. Some Democrats have suggested that Kerr's availability might be somewhat impaired by his business, which is oil. Oil has been political ammunition for Democrats against Republicans ever since the scandals which destroyed the reputation of the Harding administration. No wrong-doing is attributed to Kerr, who is held in high esteem hereabouts, and on the record he was a loyal supporter of the Roosevelt new deal as governor of Oklahoma.

Hannegan brought his high blood pressure to Washington in 1943 when he accepted appointment as commissioner of internal revenue. His rise in politics had been spectacular. He was a good student and an outstanding athlete at the St. Louis University where he was graduated in law. Like James A. Farley, who was the last Franklin D. Roosevelt's first national committee chairman, Hannegan had a natural yen for politics.

He became 21st ward committeeman in St. Louis in 1933 and just more than 10 years later he was chairman of the Democratic national committee with the assignment to obtain Mr. Roosevelt's nomination and election to a fourth term. That proved to be one of his easier jobs. A much more difficult assignment in that presidential year was to bump Henry A. Wallace out of the vice presidency.

Hannegan succeeded Frank C. Walker as chairman on Jan. 22, 1944 at a national committee meeting at which the members adopted a resolution "soliciting" Mr. Roosevelt to seek a fourth term.

COUNCIL PLANS TO MEET AT 8 YEAR AROUND

When to meet—and if not—then why?

This is the question which apparently bothered Councilman Boyd Horn and other members of the Circleville city council Tuesday night.

Councilman Horn offered a motion that the time for the council sessions be changed from 7:30 p. m. to 8 p. m. He said that 7:30 was too early and does not provide sufficient time for the members "to get ready."

It was pointed out by Councilmen Ray Cook and George L. Crites that the motion was unimportant "because the council never meets anyway until 8 o'clock or later." Horn insisted, however, that the ordinance which stipulates the council sessions between Oct. 1 and April 1 shall begin at 7:30, should be amended and the time changed to 8.

Horn finally won the argument and City Solicitor George Gerhardt was instructed to prepare the necessary legislation.

KNUTSON SAYS CONGRESS CAN REDUCE TAXES

Prominent Republican Hits Back At Critics Of 20 Percent Tax Cut

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—A prominent Republican struck back at Democratic skepticism today by reaffirming a GOP pledge for a quick 20 per cent cut in personal income taxes.

Rep. Harold Knutson, R., Minn., who is in line for chairmanship of the tax-writing house ways and means committee, said he was confident the slash could be made by the Republican-controlled 80th congress.

There were raised eyebrows among Democrats.

Rep. Eugene E. Cox of Georgia, a power among southern Democrats, said he was in sympathy with the GOP tax reduction-economy program but feared the Republicans had "promised more than they'll be able to deliver."

A somewhat similar view was expressed by Rep. Robert L. Doughton, D., N. C., retiring chairman of the ways and means committee, a post he has held for 12 years.

"I'm not criticizing the Republicans," Doughton said. "I'm not saying they can't reduce taxes. A reduction of 20 per cent or five per cent or even 25 per cent is all right with me—if it can be done."

The determining factor, he added, is whether it can be done without impairing essential government activities.

Knutson expressed his position this way:

"Upon assurances given by Mr. Taber (Rep. John Taber, R., N. Y., next chairman of the house appropriations committee) that the 1947-48 budget will be held at or below $32,000,000,000, I can assure the country, without reservation, we will be able to reduce the personal income taxes by 20 per cent, balance the budget and make substantial payment on the national debt," Knutson said.

Cox said he feared such pledges might cause the country to expect more relief than it will get.

"We've got to interest ourselves in behalf of maintaining sound and solvent government but the ills from which this country suffers can't be remedied or cured by a single stroke. It takes time."

Cox said he feels "the welfare of the country should be put above party" and that he, for one, would support sound, essential legislation regardless of party sponsorship.

He thought that legislation to modify the Wagner labor relations act and to outlaw the closed shop would be in order for the coming session.

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—Movie stars were a dime a dozen at the opening of Ingrid Bergman in "Joan of Lorraine" and a screaming mob of bobby-soxers staged a near riot in a mad rush for autographs.

Police were almost powerless to quell the enthusiastic youngsters and before it was over here is what happened:

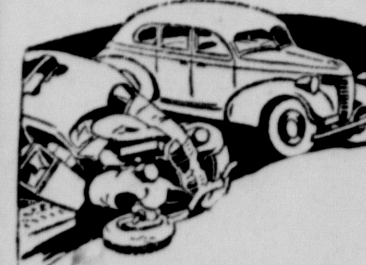

Myrna Loy had her mink coat stripped from her shoulders.

Charles Boyer was pulled out of his limousine and had his black topcoat yanked off.

Jimmy Stewart was escorted into the theater by a protective cordon of policemen who formed a flying wedge and dashed for an entrance.

Paulette Goddard wasn't only mobbed. The kids committed the unpardonable sin of mistaking her for Evelyn Keyes.

WELFARE WORK SAID 'BLOCKED BY DOLLAR SIGN'

COLUMBUS, Nov. 29.—Ohio has the best program for child care in the country "on paper," but every attempt to put the legislature enacted some months ago into effect, has been "blocked by the dollar sign," A. David Bouterse, director of the Ohio Welfare Council, told state welfare workers.

Speaking before the Ohio Welfare Conference at their meeting here Bouterse said, "There is only $3,000,000 of public funds yearly going into child welfare in Ohio. Contrast this to the $50,000,000 going to the aged and you will realize how woefully inadequate it is."

The council is recommending that the state provide 75 per cent of the funds spent on a county children's program.

Welfare director Frazier Reams said at the meeting that the State's care of the mentally ill has shown "vast improvement" but that "over emphasis" upon admitted defects in institutions has lowered morale of employees and made it increasingly difficult for superintendents of State hospitals to obtain competent attendants.

Governor-elect Thomas J. Herbert appeared at the conference and spoke extemporaneously. Governor Lausche was asked to the conference but was unable to attend.

BIG 9, PACIFIC COAST AGREE ON ROSE BOWL

Western Conference Team To Play In New Year's Day Classic In 1947

BERKELEY, Cal., Nov. 20.—The Pacific Coast conference and the Western Conference—the nation's two top-ranking intercollegiate leagues—signed a five-year agreement today to match their teams in the Rose Bowl starting Jan. 1, 1947.

The pact blasted Army's hopes of entering this New Year's tournament of Roses and still left in doubt the identity of both the Big Nine and West coast entrants.

The Western Conference choice apparently lay between Illinois, currently leading the Big Nine conference, and Michigan, which still has an outside chance to win the title in the conference's final games Saturday.

The University of California at Los Angeles and Southern California will meet Saturday to determine the tournaments' far western competitor.

The pact, reached after nearly 24 hours of debate between commissioners and faculty representatives of the two conferences, covered these points for conducting the nation's No. 1 bowl classic through Jan. 1, 1951:

1. Each conference is to designate its own representative, and presumably its championship football team.
2. For the first three years the Western Conference will select one of its own member teams.
3. For the fourth and fifth years the Western Conference will be at liberty to nominate a competitor from outside its own league, but the selected team will be subject to the approval and invitation of the Pacific Coast conference. If the two groups fail to agree on an outside nominee, then the Western Conference will send a member team.

Officials of the two conferences, who began their meeting at 10 a. m. yesterday, quickly came to an agreement on most points of the tentative agreement offered by the Big Nine. But the Western Conference wanted the whole pact to be effective next New Year's day; and there were elements of the Pacific coast delegation who favored holding off for a year so that Army's mighty unbeaten eleven could be invited.

The Big Nine, however, remained adamant on making the pact effective immediately and at 12:45 a. m. this morning the agreement was signed.

The two conferences set up an interim committee to draw up an agreement covering the conduct of the game. Commissioners Victor O. Schmidt of the Pacific Coast conference and Kenneth L. (Tug) Wilson of the Big Nine were named to this group, which also will include other representatives of both circuits and a tournament of roses representative, who will act only in an advisory capacity.

The group was expected to determine how the game will be held, how much practice the competing teams will be allowed and probably how the gate receipts will be divided.

FRANK LANE IS NEW PRESIDENT OF ASSOCIATION

CHICAGO, Nov. 20.—Frank Lane, a protégé of fiery Larry MacPhail, stepped into the presidency of the American Baseball Association today with a two year contract.

Lane, whose career began under the personal direction of MacPhail at Cincinnati, was general manager of the Association's Kansas City Blues, and supervisor of the New York Yankees western division farm clubs. He will take over his new duties Dec. 1.

He replaces H. Roy Hamey, who resigned recently to become general manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

ARMY'S BLAIK NOMINATED AS COACH OF WEEK

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—His may not be the greatest three-year coaching record in college annals, but it will do until a better one comes along.

His boys have gone 27 straight games without a defeat, they have made 168 touchdowns and 1,158 points to 143 for the combined opposition. That's an average of 42.9 points per game as against the less than a touchdown figure of 5.3 points for the opposition.

Back in 1941 when they gave him his job, he looked over the prospects and said:

"I don't know what we're up against here. I have no idea of what sort of material we may have, but somehow we'll muddle through. I think we have a few young fellows around who like to play football."

How well his boys "like to play" under him was never better demonstrated than last Saturday when suffering a natural let-down from the hardest game any of them ever had played, he rallied them to one of their most impressive victories, a 34 to 7 triumph over another power-house, the Pennsylvania Quakers.

He's the United Press coach of the week, Earl Henry (Red) Blaik of those dashin'-crashin' Cadets of the Army Military Academy.

ILLINI TRAIL IN STATISTICS

Big Nine Leader Eighth In Offense, Fourth In Defense Ranking

CHICAGO, Nov. 20.—The football "pay-off" is on points and Illinois today stood as a prime example of that fact as it eyed an undisputed western conference grid championship.

Statistically Illinois is an "also ran," ranking an unbelievable eighth offensively and fourth defensively. The Illini top only Wisconsin from an offensive standpoint.

The bare figures are deceptive however, for Coach Ray Eliot's team actually has scored more points than any rival in the conference, 113. Michigan is second with 107 points and Ohio State third with 108.

Illinois' total offense average of 212.2 yards per game is 100 yards per contest less than the league-leading total established by Michigan.

While Illinois has given its six opponents an average net gain of 236.1 yards per game, it hasn't yielded the yardage when it hurt. In its last three games against Michigan, Iowa and Ohio State, the Illini have granted only two touchdowns. Over that same three-game stretch the Illinois line has turned back 12 scoring threats when the opponents moved inside its 25-yard line.

Northwestern tops the circuit in yards gained by rushing with 222.8 and Indiana continues as the most effective passing team with an average of 130.8 yards per game through the air.

Defensively Michigan took over the lead with an overall mark of 193.9 yards per game for its foes. The Wolverines are the only Big Nine team which has a defensive mark under the 200 yard level.

With Michigan both the offensive and defensive team leader, the Wolves cut in for additional honors in individual departments with the versatile Bob Chappuis setting the total offense pace.

Chappuis has an aggregate of 765 yards and needs only 95 more in the final contest with Ohio State Saturday to break the Big Nine's total offense mark set in 1942 by Otto Graham of Northwestern.

Graham's total of 862 yards was compiled on 148 by rushing and 714 by passing. Chappuis' aggregate is better balanced with 417 yards by rushing and 351 by passing. The Michigan star has the advantage of playing seven league contests to the six in which Graham participated.

The record Chappuis threatens is one of 11 which may fall this season.

Two other marks set by Graham are in danger. His 53 pass completions good for 714 yards are tops in those brackets, but Bob DeMoss of Purdue and Ben Raimondi of Indiana threaten the completion total. DeMoss current-

TRANSMEN USE WALKIE - TALKIE UNITS AT WORK

Pennsylvania Railroad Crews Now Equipped With 'Carryphone' Units

A new kind of "walkie-talkie" portable telephone, by which trainmen inspecting their trains or otherwise working about them can talk with other members of the crew, the crews of other trains in the area, and with operators of distant wayside control towers, was announced today by the Pennsylvania Railroad.

The new "Carryphone" transmits and receives messages through the air, operating in connection with the railroad's inductive telephone system for communication between trains, between trains and control towers, and between the ends of trains, now in operation on 1,056 miles of main tracks between Harrisburg and Pittsburgh, Pa., and on the Belvidere-Delaware branch in New Jersey. It was perfected after years of cooperative development with the Union Switch & Signal Company.

Carried by means of a shoulder sling, the new unit weighs 29 pounds and is housed in a cabinet measuring only 16 1/2 by 12 3/4 by 8 inches. With it, a trainman can leave his cabin car and still maintain constant communication with other members of the crew in the cabin car or on the engine, and can talk, as well, with the operators in control towers up to 15 miles distant. He can converse with the operator of another Carryphone, or with the crew of another train, up to three miles distant.

Railroad officials pointed out that greater flexibility of operation is possible when trainmen have a means of communication immediately available whenever they leave their normal positions on the train. For example, when cars are to be switched out of a train or picked up enroute, directions for moving the train during the switching operation may be given to the engineman more efficiently by Carryphone, especially when the view may be obstructed.

The new device has proved valuable to crews making train inspections, enabling trainmen to keep in touch with the engineman, and providing a quick means of reporting any unusual circumstance. It is also expected to be valuable to crews of work trains, to track maintenance forces, and to forces patrolling and protecting the railroad.

Essentially a miniature version of the telephone transmission and receiving unit installed on trains, the Carryphone can be compared with a radio "walkie-talkie", except that instead of radio waves it transmits and receives messages through the air by induction, using the track and wayside wires on poles as its communication channels. Thus, its messages are confined entirely to the limits of the railroad, and there is no interference with radio operations in the vicinity.

In using the Carryphone, trainmen need only lift the hand piece to place the unit in operation. Tiny storage batteries provide power for approximately two hours of continuous service. When not in use, the Carryphone rests in a receptacle in the cabin car, which automatically connects its batteries, for charging with the larger batteries of the car's train telephone unit. Lifted from the receptacle, it is ready for immediate use.

History Of Coal Debate Is Recalled

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20—Log of the government dispute with the United Mine Workers:

May 22—Government seized 2,250 soft coal mines on order of President Truman after six-weeks strike and collapse of negotiations between UMW and operators.

May 29—Secretary of Interior J. A. Krug and UMW President John L. Lewis signed union-government wage contract which union hailed as greatest in its history.

Oct. 21—Lewis charged government with breach of contract; said agreement permitted either party to demand negotiations on 10 days notice and to terminate it in 30 days; asked that negotiations for a new contract begin Nov. 1.

Oct. 22—Lewis was told that the contract could not be reopened, that he should negotiate instead with mine owners. Lewis replied that contract was void unless the government agreed to negotiations.

Oct. 27—Krug invited Lewis to a conference Nov. 1.

Nov. 1—Conferences began.

Nov. 14—Krug proposed that UMW negotiate with private operators with the understanding that the government would release the mines in 60 days whatever the outcome.

Nov. 15—White House announced that Lewis rejected and the operators accepted Krug's plan; Lewis filed notice that contract would expire at midnight Nov. 20.

Nov. 18—At request of Attorney General Tom Clark, U. S. District Judge T. Alan Goldsborough issued a temporary restraining order requiring Lewis to withdraw the notice and to comply with the contract.

WISE REPEATS FIRE WARNING

Chief Reminds Councilmen That Alarm System Is Inadequate

Warning that Circleville's fire alarm system is inadequate and that the situation should be remedied "before something serious" happens was reiterated during the city council meeting Tuesday night by Fire Chief Talmer Wise.

The declaration was voiced after Chief Wise, a spectator at the session, was asked whether he had anything to say to the council.

Chief Wise reminded the municipal legislators that while some repairs were made recently to the worn-out alarm system the latter is not functioning properly. He said that frequently when a fire call is tapped on the bell at the fire station the firemen race to the location only to find the number tapped was incorrect.

"Then the firemen have to hunt all over the city to locate the fire," Chief Wise asserted. He added that in his opinion the city should have either an adequate alarm system or no system at all.

NAVY SEEKS MEN WHO CAN WORK AS TECHNICIANS

Chief Boatswain Mate E. W. Bobb who has just taken over the Navy recruiting office in Chillicothe announces the Navy is still in need of electronic technician mates, the operators of the eyes, ears and nerve systems of the new modern "push button" Navy.

Electronic technicians learn to build, install and maintain radio and radar communication equipment, radio directional finders and the newest in electronic devices.

In order to qualify for electronic technician mate training applicants must pass the "Eddy Test". This is a specialized aptitude test designed to show whether an applicant has the mental capacity and knowledge of high school mathematics and physics required to absorb the intensified course of study represented by E. T. M. training.

The Navy offers to men who qualify a 42 weeks training school with a 28 weeks advanced school after receiving practical experience at sea or shore station. The school curriculums are constantly revised to take advantage of the new improvements and developments in the field of electronics.

Men between 17 and 30 who can qualify for enlistment in the Navy may obtain information at the Chillicothe recruiting office or from the recruiter when he visits the VFW home in Chillicothe.

Thank God For Muscle-Rub!

Writes Mr. Robert Jordan, Colon, Mich.

Advise every sufferer from Rheumatic-Arthritic-Sciatic-Neuritic Pains to try Muscle-Rub.

Here's the true story of a man who took treatments, used all kinds of remedies for his sciatic, neuritic pains without being helped in the slightest degree. Mr. Robert Jordan of Colon, Mich., suffered agony from pains in his hip-knee-calf of legs. The pain at times was so bad that he couldn't sit down. He tried several different treatments, many different medicines all of which did him no good. He couldn't work. Life was misery for him.

Then one day he saw an advertisement of Muscle-Rub—the doctor's prescription—and in desperation bought a bottle. He used it as directed and in 3 days the pains were relieved and Mr. Jordan was back on the job.

HIGH PRICES

EVERYBODY is complaining about high prices of everything. The old dollar has been stretched and stretched, and it covers less and less. Neither disappearance of the OPA nor scarcities explain entirely the soaring cost of living, say the economists.

There are two other factors. One is the practice of many labor unions in forcing their members to spin out their work, make it take unnecessarily long with a resultant wage increase that boosts the prices of production. Another contributing cause of high prices is the deliberate restriction by some manufacturers and contractors of the quality, quantity and variety of goods offered. From both schemes profits result. The public pays.

Consumers, either individually or possibly in group action, eventually will react to this sort of thing by curtailing, wherever possible, their purchases. In other words, prices if pushed artificially high bring a buyers' resistance which, if extensive enough, can mean national financial collapse.

BULLDOZER VICTORY

E. L. SHANER, editor of the trade magazine Steel, home after a 48,000 mile trip with a group of business men sent out by the United States Reparations Committee, said Japanese told their party they knew they were defeated when they saw American bulldozers at work. Landing ships would discharge these huge machines which in a few hours would prepare an air field. Japan had nothing to compare with such inventions. They symbolized in a graphic way the might and organization of America.

Here is another example of the important part industry plays in modern warfare. Bulldozers arriving in LST's, quite as much as guns, brought victory in World War II.

RUSSIA HAS A POINT

COMMENTING on the recent elections the Soviet army paper, the Red Star, says:

"A considerable part of the American people are deprived of the right to vote especially the poorest layers of whites and negroes."

As long as Mississippians persist in following a Bilbo, and Georgians elect men like Talmadge, Americans cannot deny the Red Star's allegations. White supremacy is a blot not only on certain southern sections of this country, but on the entire nation. It should become the responsibility of Congress to see that the constitution's franchise-for-all clauses are enforced everywhere.

Sure we have worries. But if we had nothing to do but loaf and play games, we'd probably be bored to death.

Major party leaders are said to be considering the nomination of a military hero in 1948. Why not Kilroy?

Murray May Request CIO
Vote Condemning "Commies"

House Agricultural Chief
Is Farm Problem Expert

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—History will have a chance to repeat itself at the CIO convention in Atlantic City late this month.

Six years ago in the same city Philip Murray, in accepting the presidency of the organization as successor to John L. Lewis, insisted upon passage of a resolution condemning Communists in the CIO.

Murray will go to the 1946 convention under pressure from many top CIO leaders to repeat his performance. In fact, some CIO officials are urging an outright purge of the left-wingers.

For six years Murray has tried to harmonize differences of the left and right-wingers and hold the organization together. The recent election results, generally interpreted as a blow at left-wing sentiment, may have convinced him the time has come to clean house.

If he does so, some observers believe that a merger of the AFL and CIO might be possible in the not too distant future. The right-wing majority of CIO could be welded with the AFL into a powerful American labor body and the left-wingers left to wither and die alone.

THE GOP LANDSLIDE puts a newcomer at the helm of the House agriculture committee. He is Rep. Clifford Hope (R) of Kansas, considered by both parties as one of the ablest

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20—Skeptical newsmen laughed among themselves about the promise of a Republican individual income tax cut of 20 per cent and said it would be a good trick if they could do it. The stock market fell short of ecstasy also. The market was closed for the day, when speaker-to-be Martin promised it, but next day trading failed to react much and even when the steering committees adopted the program definitely, the market achieved no immediate impetus.

The fact is the tax cut is an economic necessity, and the Republicans will not only effect the promised 20 percent but more. The only thing which will limit the cut is, receipts are diminishing from expectations today due to business losses. Ford, for instance, has announced a loss of $51.6 millions in 9 months before tax rebates. Corporations pay taxes only on profits, and if there are none, there will be no tax income from that source, which means the receipts pot will be that much smaller, hindering a tax reduction.

But the Republican steers agreed they could cut individuals as much as 20 percent anyway, and publicly announced that much, while privately hoping and planning to do something like that with the general tax structure.

A man earning $50 a week with one dependent, today pays 5 or 10 percent in withholding taxes before he gets his salary. This has nothing to do with social security, which runs his tax bill even higher. But it is too much. A 20 percent cut in the tax would lop $1 off and leave him paying $4 which is still rather high cost for a federal government.

The August Truman budget is $41.5 billions with expected receipts of $39.6 billions (leaving a deficit) but Senator Taft, who knows government finance thoroughly, is talking about a budget for next year (beginning next July 1) of about $30 billions, which would represent a cut of more than one-fourth. Taft has publicly listed about $6 billions of this year's appropriations which will not all recur next year, and these alone would seem to cut the prospective budget down to $35 billions before you even get into the possibilities of economies in government outlays including Army and Navy expense.

If business gets into production to a reasonably anticipated extent, Ford actually should make money in the next calendar year, certainly in the next government fiscal year which lags 6 months, and about which current budget talk is concerned.

Therefore while the Republicans have said nothing about it publicly, overall factors favor an even greater tax reduction accomplishment than they have mentioned—provided production can be restored.

Now some authorities have criticized the Republican theory already of slashing a straight 20 per cent across the individual income board, saying one class should receive more, or less. The truth is the flat cut is economically urgent today because the hipayers are the ones who are stalled. High spending is evident but not from income in the middle and top brackets. From a man earning say $10,000 a year, the government takes from his income on an average of $2,347, which means that he works nearly 3 months a year solely for the government, giving all his income to it, and only 9 months a year for himself—while the $50 a week man works at little more than 5 weeks a year for the federal government. An equally proportioned cut would give the hipayer far more than a 20 percent reduction.

men in the House on farm problems. Hope replaces Rep. John Flannagan (D) of Virginia who took over after the death of Rep. Hampton Fulmer (D) of South Carolina.

Observers see a close working agreement between Hope and a former colleague who served on the committee—Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson.

They see, also, the possibility of a "tough" period ahead for the GOP farm boys in Congress. They fear that continuation of high war-time agricultural production may result in a surplus headache, with farmers producing more foodstuffs than the demand will stand.

It was pointed out that United States agricultural exports are expected to decline when Europe gets her war-ravaged farms back into production. This would leave the United States "holding the bag" with large backlogs of farm products.

Best bet: Watch for Senator George Aiken (R) of Vermont to re-introduce his food stamp plan to use up surpluses to feed the needy in this country.

ALTHOUGH SENATOR THEODORE BILBO (D) of Mississippi is the target of two Senate investigations, veteran Washington observers doubt that anything will be done to prevent him from taking his seat in the 80th Congress.

Spastic Colitis—The Part Played by Nervous Tension

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

THE bowel is a muscular tube and these muscles, like those in other parts of the body, have a normal and regular pattern of contraction and relaxation. In some nervous individuals, however, the bowel muscles are overly contracted and remain in a constant state of tension, causing the bowel to become contracted in some portions.

When this state of affairs continues over long periods of time, we have a condition known as spastic colitis. Most individuals with this disorder will begin to show more or less severe symptoms before the age of forty. Usually they complain chiefly of abdominal pain and constipation, though in some instances there may also be passage of mucus from the bowel. The pain in the abdomen tends to be worse during times of strain or tension, and in women, during the time of the regular monthly period. The pain seldom bothers the patient at night. It is made worse by cold and relieved by warmth. The pain for the most part is in the lower part of the abdomen.

Symptoms of Colitis

Most of the patients with spastic colitis are constipated and many have an excess of gas in the bowel. This gas causes rumbling noises and swelling or distention of the abdomen. Sometimes there is a burning pain along the entire course of the large bowel. Even in those who are constipated there may be alternating attacks of diarrhea. In addition to these symptoms affecting the abdomen there may also be nervousness, depression and a general exhaustion, nausea, paleness, and rapid and noticeable beating of the heart.

While the exact cause of spastic colitis is not known definitely, it is generally believed to be due to nervous disturbances. The patients are likely to be of a nervous temperament. However, in many cases the condition is aggravated by the use of laxatives.

Treating the Disorder

In treating this disorder, reassurance of the patient is one of the most important steps. He must be made to realize that his disorder is not a serious one. Then he must be taught to adjust his life so as to avoid strain insofar as is possible. He should be encouraged to be less conscious of his bowel.

Most of the patients with spastic colitis do best on a so-called bland diet, that is, one which contains no bulky or irritating foods. Mineral oil may also be useful. Such drugs as belladonna may help to relieve the bowel spasms. But, of course, it should be employed only under the direction of a physician.

I have outlined a bland diet, and I shall be glad to send this information to those desiring it, to aid in following their physician's advice. A stamped, self-addressed envelope should be enclosed. Names will not be used.

CHAPTER TWENTY-EIGHT

"Oh, Heidi, you are, darling," Mrs. Hewlett said with obvious relief to someone who had come at Lydia's back.

She came around and faced Lydia. It was Eugenia.

"I'm sure you children have a great deal in common and I'm just going to leave you alone," Mrs. Hewlett said, smiling, as she edged away.

It was rude to think it so suddenly, but Lydia doubted that she had anything in common with this tall, brown-haired, brown-eyed girl.

Although she was pretty, quite pretty, and poised and smartly dressed in brown, there was something missing in Eugenia, a lack somewhere of which she herself was painfully aware. She had filled the gap with insincerity and her animation was only a pose.

Nor had the situation been handled very subtly. For it was all too clear that no spirit of neighborliness had prompted the invitation.

She could hear Eugenia saying to her mother, "Since you're having some friends in, it would be a good excuse for me to meet Chris's wife. Call her up and ask her to come. I'm curious to see the girl he married."

"Shall we sit over there?" Eugenia asked, pointing to a far corner of the large, beautifully furnished room. "And I'll see that you get some tea."

She glanced back and smiled. But her smile was a pose, too, a rehearsed sort of smile to reveal large and perfect teeth. There was also something disquietingly descending in her manner and her smile.

When they were seated on the most intimate-looking of little sofas, Eugenia came to the point at once.

"Do tell me about Chris. I'm away a good deal, but mother wrote me about him, all about his being back and married. I was in school before the war, but when I was home for week-ends I always knew what time it was on Sunday mornings when I saw Chris riding. He had two of the most gorgeous horses I've ever seen. Of course I rode with him several times and I was sick when mother wrote he'd had to sell them."

"He had to sell them when he enlisted. I'm sorry I never saw them."

Eugenia looked intense. "He—he was wounded, wasn't he? It seems to me that mother wrote me about that, too."

"Yes," Lydia said. "In the leg. He has a stiff leg. He has to use a cane."

Eugenia waved a flippant hand. "Oh, but he'll get over it, won't he? I mean it's only temporary. I'm not going to think of getting married for years and years."

You want to be married so desperately and you are so desperately afraid of being "left" that you had your mother ask me here this afternoon in the hope that Chris's and my marriage wasn't working out. . . . Why do you give yourself away like this? Why do you make yourself an object of pity to me? You are trying to do something to convince yourself that you don't want the thing your heart cries for. You didn't have a marvelous time in Canada. You had a ghastly time.

Lydia said, "The world is terribly unstable now, and it is a good idea to postpone some decisions until later." She didn't know what to say.

"I'm glad to hear you say that. Of course mother thinks I'm silly not to marry. But I've always said that a girl should have a fling as some sort of career first. If she doesn't do it before she marries, she isn't likely to later on. And, frankly, so much has been spent on my education it seems a shame not to use some of it."

Lydia squashed her cigar. Then she looked directly at Eugenia and said, "There's a good bit to be said in favor of the life of a spinster, too. Of course I don't mean you, I just happened to think of a discussion I had with some girls at school and all the good points I thought of for being a spinster. A war kills not only husbands, but potential husbands. There are probably a good many girls who won't marry because some boy they were never to know was killed."

"And so many of them have married English and Australian girls and girls from other countries." Her voice dropped low. Then, brightening, she added, "Since you've thought it out so carefully, at least you did once, I'd like to hear your points in favor of spinsterhood sometime. It sounds terribly amusing. I'd like to know how they stack up against the lives of some of mother's unmarried women friends."

Lydia said, "It isn't particularly amusing. It's simply that you don't have to be married in order to have a full and interesting life. And I know some case histories to prove it."

"You must tell me more about it sometime." She laughed airily. "What a queer conversation we're having! But it's fun, rather, isn't it, rather than the usual brand?"

As soon as I can convince mother that I'm not married before the war, and that I'm really serious about a job I'll call you and we'll get together. Maybe in town for lunch."

You think I can help you, Lydia thought. I want to help Kirby. But you think that possibly there is something I can tell you that will give you hope, not for a husband, but for a life without a husband for a girl "left out" . . .

Everyone's been getting married except you, Eugenia. All the girls you know married before the war, or when they came home on leave or they are definitely going to be married soon now that the war is over. Everyone except you. They've called you and told you their hurriedly gathered plans. You've been to some of the weddings. You've drunk champagne at the receptions. You've seen them go away together. Everyone except you. . . . No one has wanted to marry you. Perhaps no one ever will, you think.

SUIT IS BADLY DIVIDED

WHENEVER a defender, whom you rank as an able performer, leads a suit which you or your partner had bid strongly, you can nearly always soundly consider that the outstanding cards of it are very badly divided. Either the lead is a singleton, or else it is from a holding so long that the leader thinks his partner has a very short holding in the suit, perhaps void of it. Rarely the lead is to avoid pitching away from tenace or guarded honors in other suits, or to destroy the timing.

West led the spade Q, then the J to the K. East, who could easily read both hidden hands as now void of spades, decided to switch to his singleton club. South, an incurable optimist, won it with the dummy's J and then took three high trumps, hoping that both hearts and clubs would prove to be evenly divided. He was badly disappointed when East discarded on the second round. Now he knew he would have club trouble also.

Three high clubs went through, but when South lost the next to West's 10, the latter took out his final trump with the heart J, then scored the setting trick with the diamond A.

After East's club lead to the third trick, South should have been sure the suit would not break and should have attempted a safety play. After winning with the J, then taking one trump, he should have led the club 5 and ruffed with the heart 10, not caring if East had the J to over-ruff; if he had, the trump 9 would have set up. When that won, he should have returned with the heart 7 to the K, played the Q and then run clubs until he drove out West's heart J. The diamond A then would have been West's last trick, and the contract would have been made.

20th Anniversary Of DAR Chapter Observed

Hugh Huntington Is Speaker; 75 Attend Dinner-Meeting

Twentieth anniversary of the Pickaway Plains chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution was celebrated with a covered dish dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clark K. Hunsicker, West Union street, Tuesday evening.

Hugh Huntington, Columbus, guest speaker, was introduced by Mrs. Walter Kinder. He used as his subject, "Old Wills and Inheritance Tax". Willis he said, reflect the character of the man who made the will or rather the custom of the day when the will was made. James Smithson, an eccentric Englishman, who had never set foot in America, left a fortune to the then, new Republic. The Smithsonian Institute was founded with this money.

Henry T. Page, Circleville, in his will, gave the greatest private gift ever received at Ohio State University. Page Hall of Ohio State University is named for him. After 75 years it is still considered the greatest private gift.

Hannah Nell in her will founded the Hannah Nell Mission. Calvin Coolidge made his will while president of the United States. It consisted of 23 words and was written on White House stationery. Mary Ball Washington, mother of the President, George Washington, in her will of 1777, willed her slave girl to her grandson to be his and his heir's forever. Mr. Huntington presented a photostatic copy of this will to the Pickaway Plains chapter.

He said he had given his talk on wills many times but that his reason for doing so was to keep alive the memory of those who have done so much for the boys and girls of Ohio.

Mr. Huntington said inheritance in the last generation has assumed great importance. The inheritance tax in small estates is not large but increases in proportion to the size of the estate.

Mrs. Clark Hunsicker, organizing regent of the Pickaway Plains chapter, read excerpts from many letters and clippings she has collected during the 20 years of the chapter's existence. Mrs. Herbert Backus, Springfield, state regent, was the installing officer at the founding of the chapter.

Seventy-five members and guests enjoyed the dinner which preceded the program and Mrs. Charles Pugsley, regent, introduced Mrs. James B. Patton, state regent from Columbus. Mrs. William H. Adams, Grandview, state director of the central district, and Mr. Adams, out-of-town guests included Mrs. John Graham, Lancaster, past state chairman, and Mr. Graham, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Huntington, Columbus; Miss Mary Barrere, Hillsboro; Mr. and Mrs. John Dunlap, Williamsport, and Mrs. Joseph Paul, Oberlin.

To open the meeting Mrs. James Moffitt sang one verse of the Star Spangled Banner and Mrs. R. R. Bales led the salute to the flag. The group sang, "America the Beautiful" at the close of the evening.

Soap and water cleaning usually is enough for stainless steel knives. Sometimes, however, a film forms on them which is not easily removed with soap and water. This film yields to a mild scouring powder applied with a soft, damp cloth. Rubbing with a soft, dry cloth also brings up the lustre. Knives should be washed and dried as soon as possible after using because certain foods containing salt and acids are apt to pit the metal if left on for an extended period.

Good News For Folks Who Suffer From

- ✓ STOMACH GAS
- ✓ SOUR FOOD TASTE
- ✓ ACID INDIGESTION

Do you feel bloated and miserable after every meal, taste sour, bitter food? If so, here is how you may get blessed relief from this nervous distress. Everytime food enters the stomach a vital gastric juice must flow normally to break-up certain food particles; else the food may ferment. Sour food, acid indigestion and gas frequently cause a morbid, touchy, fretful, peevish, nervous condition, loss of appetite, underweight, restless sleep, weakness. To get real relief you must increase the flow of this vital gastric juice. Medical authorities, in independent laboratory tests on human stomachs, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in increasing this flow when it is too little or scanty due to a non-organic stomach disturbance. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients. Also, SSS Tonic helps build-up non-organic, weak, watery blood in nutritional anemia—so with a good flow of this gastric digestive juice, plus rich red-blood you should eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better. Avoid punishing yourself with over-doses of soda and other alkalies to counteract gas and bloating when what you so dearly need is SSS Tonic to help you digest food for body strength and repair. # Council Hears Four Ordinances

NEW BOULEVARD LIGHTS MAY BE INSTALLED SOON

Sewer Improvements Studied By Councilmen; Reports Read At Meeting

Initial readings of four ordinances, one of which provides $5,000 for materials to be used in sewer improvements, and disclosure that Circleville's downtown boulevard lighting system may be installed by Christmas, featured a meeting of the city council Tuesday night.

A report of the city's financial condition was read and approved. It showed a balance of $87,391.28.

John C. Goeller, council president, was ill at his home. Other members absent from Tuesday night's session were Ray Anderson and John Eshelman. William M. Reid presided in place of Goeller. The only other councilmen present were George L. Crites and Ray Cook.

First reading was given four ordinances by Clerk Fred R. Nicholas. Each is an amendment to the annual appropriation ordinance and they provide (1) $1,500 from the gas tax fund to the city service department for labor, (2) $4,000 for Berger hospital from the general fund, (3) unspecified amount for services of an engineer for the service department, (4) and $5,000 for the service department for purchase of sewer materials.

Following the reading of the fourth ordinance Councilman Cook asked: "Where are these sewers?" During the discussion that ensued Service Director Clarence Helvering revealed that the sewer improvements are in South Court street, Collins addition, Crist addition, Highland avenue addition, and Clinton street.

Informing the council that the work of installing the boulevard lights has already been started by the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric company Service Director Helvering and Mayor Ben H. Gordon asserted the new downtown lights may be in operation by Christmas. The mayor and service director said that shipments of poles and other necessary materials, delayed for several months, are now reportedly enroute to Circleville.

Authorized by council in April the new 37-unit boulevard lighting system will cost the municipality $1,788 a year and there will be no installation cost to the city. The power company will install the system on Court and Main streets. The 37 lights will be operated all night, every night in the year.

The financial report of the city, covering the period from Nov. 1 to 19, was submitted by Councilman Crites, chairman of the finance committee. The report listed: General fund, receipts $1,058.29, expenditures $2,171.32, balance $22,767.01; sewage disposal fund, receipts $375, expenditures $733.01, balance $1,748.11; library fund, receipts none, expenditures $252.54, balance $7,537.66; auto street repair fund, receipts $35, expenditures $705.78, balance $4,410.93; gas tax fund, receipts none, expenditures $91.87, balance $2,939.93; hospital fund, receipts $2,411.82, expenditures $2,573.54, balance $8,512.61; and waterworks fund, receipts $4,171.61, expenditures $1,248.57, balance $39,475.63. Safety Director Thurman Miller submitted a report for Berger hospital, covering the month of October, listing expenses $4,071.81 and collections $4,575.87. Council approved the report.

AUDITING COSTS ARE HIGHER NOW

Councilmen Informed City Examination Held Up By 'Green' Examiner

In a further airing of the Circleville city council's indignation over a bill for $851.69 from State Auditor Joseph Ferguson covering a recent audit of the city's books and records Councilman George L. Crites informed council Tuesday night that he had made inquiry at the state auditor's office concerning the alleged excessive sum.

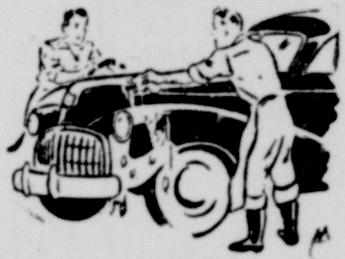

Councilman Crites said he was told that Examiner Peter C. Rockel had brought another examiner with him for the audit in Circleville and that the second man, Lamar Foster, was inexperienced in the work and that as a result the state's bill to the city was higher than usual.

It was disclosed that the bill for $851.69 included $12 a day for Rockel and $8 a day to Foster, plus their expenses in traveling from Springfield to Circleville and return over a period of weeks. The bill also included a $57 item for typing the examiners' report.

Councilman Crites said the state auditor's office told him the prices of the examinations have been increased since the last preceding audit in Circleville. Councilman Crites offered a motion, which was passed, instructing City Solicitor George Gerhardt to determine "whether we shall pay for educating a state examiner."

The bill for auditing had been discussed at the Nov. 5 council session.
